"I EXPECTED JEFF TO QUIT BLUFFING," JOHNSON SAYS

CHICAGO, July 12.—Jack Johnson, world's heavyweight champion, was not a bit surprised when he read to-day the announcement by Jim Jeffries that the latter had finally decided not to go on with his training work for the proposed match for the world's title. Over the long distance 'phone, Johnson, in Cedar Lake, where he is doing light training for his Pacific Coast battles, reiterated past remarks regarding the big white man who threatened his title.

"The public will see how I have been on the square in all my statements," Jack said. "How Jeffries will excuse himself with the public I don't know and don't care, but he is getting away with the most colossal bluff ever made by a man calling himself a sportsman.

"When the announcement was first made that Jeffries intended to try and get into shape for a battle with me, the whole scheme had been worked out. He never intended to fight, because he knew he never could get into condition, and was not sure, if he did get into shape, that he could beat me. He merely was working for the theatrical syndicate that hired him at a fat salary, and said that a clause in his contract prohibited him from accepting challenges and posting forfeits for a fight, and that he would make an announcement as soon as his theatrical time was ended.

"He never actually said, I believe, that he would fight, but kept hinting at it so strongly that the opinion easily was formed that he had sincere intentions. He was not sincere, Sam Berger was not sincere, and both of them knew it.

"They kept shooting digs into me, but they dared not come out in the open and say 'fight.' Now that the time has come to make a definite announcement and the end of their rope has been reached they say, 'Jeff cannot get into shape,' and that is supposed to end the matter after the public has contributed thousands of dollars to see him perform.

"The public patronized him because he created the impression that he was going to fight me. He wouldn't have drawn 30 cents if the public had been told the truth at the start. He can settle with the public now anyway he wants to. I am going along with my training and will beat any of them, Ketchel or Kaufman, or anybody else.

"We will match with Kaufman when they show us the inducements, and as far as I know our match with Ketchel is on. Forfeits of $5,000 each are up with Mr. Naughton in San Francisco, and I don't see how Britt and Ketchel are going to get away from that part of it."

JEFFRIES QUITS; SAYS HE CANNOT GET INTO SHAPE

James J. Jeffries is "down and out," so far as the fight game goes. He says so himself.

Jeffries, having worked the advertising game for all it was worth, now says he

M'CALL OUT AGAINST THE INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The feature of the House session to-day was a debate on the joint resolution submitting to the States an income tax amendment to the Constitution, which was reported favorably from committee.

Representative Payne said he would support the joint resolution, as it was proper to submit the question to the States. In his opinion an income tax would be unconstitutional under the present form of government. The United States Supreme Court had so decided, and there was no ground to believe, he added, that the court would reverse itself. On general principles, however, he opposed income taxation.

Representative McCall of Massachusetts said there was no need for such haste in considering the matter, and in his judgment an income tax was not necessary. He said that an income tax would destroy that section of the Constitution which provides that there shall be no direct tax, and that taxes shall be apportioned among the people. He suggested that it would give the smaller States undue advantage over the larger States. He termed the incomet ax a political jack cade.

Representative Clark of Missouri supported the joint resolution. He said he favored the Bailey-Cummins income tax amendment.

The Philippine tariff bill was received from the Senate, and on motion of Representative Payne of New York it was sent to a conference. The Speaker appointed the following conferees on the bill: Dill of Connecticut, Needham of California and Pou of North Carolina.

The lobby is actively at work presenting its arguments to the conferees on the tariff. The conferees met at 10 a. m. to-day, and planned also an afternoon and evening session.

Even under this pressure it is doubted if an agreement can be reached inside of ten days or two weeks.

The hotels are full of men representing interests affected by the bill, and they are clamoring to be taken care of in conference. Undoubtedly many amendments of vital interest to certain industries were permitted to get into the bill in the Senate merely to avoid discussion with the purpose of acting upon them definitely in conference. The struggle now is to keep them in or modify them to suit the interests of the men behind them.

BIG GOLD FIELD IS DISCOVERED

SEATTLE, July 12.—The most remarkable gold discovery since the Klondike finds has just been made at Lac la Bonge, 200 miles north of Prince Albert, in the great hinterland of the province of Saskatchewan, according to dispatches received here.

The assays so far made from former finds have shown $5,178 and $6,164 to the ton respectively, but the latest sample is declared to carry from $20,000 to $30,000 to the ton.

GRAND LODGE ELKS ATTEND BIG BARBECUE

LOS ANGELES, July 12.—Elks by the thousands flocked to Pasadena early to-day, the first entertainment provided for the members of the organization now gathered in this city for the annual reunion of the grand lodge, taking place there this morning. The grand lodge members and their escorts were provided with automobiles and after a trip over the city, were deposited at Tournament Park, where athletics, chariot races and feats of horsemanship were provided for their entertainment.

At noon a monster barbecue was served, and following this a realistic stage hold-up was enacted. This afternoon a number of athletic events are being held at Ascot park in this city, and thousands of the visitors were attracted there while others are enjoying themselves at the seashore.

To-night the opening public ceremonies of the reunion of the grand lodge will be held in the auditorium theatre. Governor James N. Gillette of California and others will deliver addresses of welcome to the visitors, and Grand Exalted Ruler Rush L. Holland will respond on behalf of the Elks. The city is given over to the visitors, and with perfect weather prevailing and the immense number of visitors well cared for in this city and the surrounding cities and resorts, there is nothing to mar the reunion.

The first meeting of the grand lodge, when new officers will be elected, will take place to-morrow.

EMERSON GIVES OUT LIGHTING FIGURES

Superintendent of Streets Emerson appeared before the Finance Commission this afternoon and gave what information he possessed relative to the bids submitted for lighting the smaller streets and alleyways of the city.

There has been much speculation as to the financial standing of the company recently organized, known as the Greater Boston Illuminating Company, which has submitted the lowest figure for the work.

Superintendent Emerson was notified to-day that the company is prepared to meet any criticism along these lines by filing at once its bond for $50,000 to insure the carrying out of the contract.

Its bid is in the vicinity of $236,000 annually for a five-year period. Lighting experts who have studied the figures are at a loss to understand where the profit will come from should it be given the work at that sum. It is said, however, that the company is willing to install lights at practically cost, chiefly through the advertising benefit which would be derived through having the streets of such a large city as Boston equipped with its lamps.

G. W. Cox, W. M. Butler, United States Marshal Guy Murchie and J. F. Bacon are the counsel directing the campaign of the company.

Mrs. William Thaw, Who Is Making Fight for Son

TARBOX BONDS ARE ATTACHED FOR $100,000

An attachment of $100,000 has been filed against the property of Bernard L. Tarbox to cover the $25,000 damage suit brought against him by the parents of Gertrude Mae Devine, the nineteen-year-old stenographer with whom Tarbox eloped.

This attachment is on stocks and bonds which Tarbox owns and which were left by him in Boston in care of two friends.

An interesting item in the movements of Tarbox, who is now thought to be in Montreal, was his flying trip back to Rochester, N. Y., recently to get the high-powered Oldsmobile with the blue body and the forty-two inch wheels which served as a vehicle in the elopement. When Tarbox and the girl went out of Rochester he left the auto behind, saying he was going to sell it. But it is now learned that he recently slipped down to Rochester, went to the garage and took the car away with him.

Surprise Is Promised.

The $25,000 damage suit brought by Gertrude Mae Devine's parents is filed through the office of Attorney Carroll, who says that when the allegations in the suit are made public, on or before the first Monday in August, there will be some sensational charges.

It is expected that Mrs. Blanche Tarbox, the first wife of the defendant, and who is now living with his mother, Mrs. Arameda Tarbox of Bath, Maine, will be a witness against her husband in the suit. She is already suing him for divorce on her own account.

Meanwhile there is much speculation as to the movements of Attorney Walter A. Ladd, counsel for Mrs. Blanche Tarbox and for Mrs. Arameda Tarbox. On June 9 Mr. Ladd saw Tarbox and Miss Devine in Rochester, N. Y. He brought back a written statement from Tarbox, ordering Bernard L. Boland and Theodore Rollins to give Mr. Ladd all of Tarbox's property which they had. The order also revoked their power of attorney.

At Ladd's office to-day a stenographer said he was out of town.

Not Acting for Tarbox.

In a letter to the Woonsocket police Ladd said that he was counsel for Mrs. Blanche Tarbox and Mrs. Arameda Tarbox, and that he was not acting for Tarbox. He gave notice, however, that if a warrant was issued for Tarbox he would like to be heard so that one could be issued for Gertrude Mae Devine also. He said those were the instructions he had received.

Fred L. Norton, former counsel for Claudia Hains, who has been retained to appear for Tarbox in this $25,000 suit, says: "I only appear for Bernard L. Tarbox in this suit for $25,000. I know nothing about any of the other phases of the case."

MANTIR COUNSEL VISITS ACCUSED

The first move by the defence in the Annie Mullins murder case was made to-day when counsel for James Mantir, one of the two accused, conferred with the prisoner in his cell. Henry H. Winslow, the senior counsel, and John A. E. Moroney, junior counsel, spent considerable time at the courthouse in East Cambridge. Moroney conferring with Mantir in the East Cambridge Jail.

FOUR BROKERS ARRESTED IN 'BUCKET' NET

Four men were arrested in this city to-day on secret indictment warrants charging them with conducting bucket shops.

A recent graduate of a high school and a grizzled and bent old man were two of the four persons. All were held in the Superior Criminal Court in $500 bail. Other arrests are expected.

The prisoners were J. Whitney Beals, Jr., of South Weymouth, Henry C. Wilson, of No. 283 Walnut street, Brookline; Abraham Zion of Fayston street, Roxbury, and Victor S. Heyman of No. 60 Batavia street.

Wilson and Beals ran their business at No. 55 Devonshire street. The others were in business next door at No. 53. One of the complainants was Charles Dimock.

One Twenty; One Seventy.

Zion is only about twenty years old. He graduated from the English High School two years ago. Wilson is about seventy years old and he presented a pathetic figure when he tottered to the bench. He is gray and bent of form. Beals is a member of a family prominent in Boston. His father and mother were in court and furnished bail.

Each of the men when arraigned in court pleaded not guilty to the charge made against them. Judge Harris held them in $500 bail each and they were all able to furnish it.

The men were arrested as a result of secret indictments returned by the grand jury on Saturday. The arrests came as a surprise and caused a sensation in the fringe of the financial district.

One other man in particular is wanted, but the detectives have so far been unable to find him. It is believed that he will be found before night.

The men taken into custody were in business as brokers and the specific charge in the warrants against the men were dated February 22. None of the firms with which the arrested men were connected is now in business.

PETROLEUM BUTTER SOON ON MARKET

ALTON, Ill., July 12.—The first petroleum butter, the Standard Oil's latest product of benevolent assimilation, is to be turned out at the Wood River Refinery, near Alton. Preparations are being made to manufacture the product here, and the machinery that will do to the milch cow what the automobile did to the horse has been shipped. The new product will be known as petrol butter. It is said to be of the same consistency as lacteal butter, but brown in color. It lasts a great deal longer than real butter, it is said, and does not become rancid.

BOY AERONAUT IS OFF ON LONG FLIGHT

NEW YORK, July 12.—Frank W. Goodale, who is known as "the boy aeronaut," sailed across the Hudson River in his dirigible balloon to-day, followed Broadway from One Hundred and Tenth street to Forty-second street, circled around the uptown office of the Evening Journal, and then returned to the Palisades Amusement Park, from which he started.

Goodale was up in the air for fifty minutes. During that time he said that his airship was under perfect control and that aside from the engine missing a spark occasionally, there was not the slightest sign of trouble. Crowds in Broadway watched the manoeuvres of the aerial craft.

THAW THREATENED TO KILL WIFE

Affidavit by Evelyn Thaw May Keep Husband in Matteawan Asylum—Fears for Life, She Says.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The principal barrier to the liberation of Harry K. Thaw from the Matteawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane is his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

This became known to-day when the habeas corpus proceedings instituted by his mother began at White Plains before Justice Mills, who takes testimony to determine Thaw's sanity.

Young Mrs. Thaw has made a remarkable affidavit, now in the possession of District Attorney Jerome, in which she swears that she fears her life would be endangered by Thaw's release.

She sets forth that on the occasion of her last visit to Matteawan to see her husband, Thaw said to her:

"I will be out in a little while, and when I am, I am going to New York and kill you."

He repeated this threat in various forms, Mrs. Thaw swears, and she is fearful that if he is set free he will carry it out. She says further in her affidavit that Thaw's insanity is intermittent. At times he appears to be perfectly rational, but he has his bad days, and on these days he is beyond control.

Evelyn Is Subpoenaed.

Evelyn confided her fears to her lawyer, Daniel O'Reilly, and it was finally decided to lay the facts before the District Attorney. They will be used in an effort to prevent his release. She is ready to take the stand if called, having been subpoenaed shortly after midnight this morning. Mr. Morschauser, counsel for Thaw, stated that he did not subpoena her. The young woman had not arrived when court opened.

A short time before the hearing began before Justice Mills, at 10 o'clock, the Countess of Yarmouth, sister of the prisoner, arrived in the courtroom. She was accompanied by Mrs. Josiah Thaw, wife of his half brother. The aged mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, joined the two young women, taking a seat between them.

The first witness called was Richard F. Lancing, a real estate dealer of Poughkeepsie. He said he was a trustee of a Baptist church and had met Thaw at a religious meeting in the courthouse in Poughkeepsie about a year ago.

Mr. Lancing testified that he had read a poem to Thaw entitled "Out of Touch." Thaw, he said, had been greatly affected by the verse and asked for a copy of it. The witness was questioned by Chares Morschauser, counsel for the prisoner, about various conversations he had with Thaw, in an endeavor to show that the speech of Thaw was coherent.

Thaw Looked Very Well.

Oscar Mulford, who had been a keeper in the Poughkeepsie jail when Thaw was confined there, testified that his demeanor and conversation had been entirely rational. Thaw leaned forward in his chair and listened to all the answers with great attention. He was dressed in a dark blue serge suit and wore glasses. It was apparent that the quiet life he has been living agreed with him as he was many pounds heavier than when last seen in public.

Several times during the hearing Thaw turned in his seat and held a whispered conversation with the Countess. He appeared to be in the best of humor and smiled as he talked with his sister. Mrs. Thaw, however, did not speak to her son during the proceedings, her attention being riveted on the witness. She has aged greatly during the past few months.

During the morning session the courtroom was crowded to the doors, many fashionably dressed women being present.

Father Evers, chaplain at the Tombs prison, testified that in his opinion Thaw was rational during his stay in the Tombs. John J. Hanley, head keeper at the Tombs, thought so too. He said the prisoner was interested keenly in sports and was depressed if his favorite ball team did not win. Hanley said Thaw's lawyer had given him $50 to pay his expenses. Mark Dubois, a Poughkeepsie newspaper man, next testified that he had often talked with Thaw and thought him all right mentally.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, July 12.—The final game of the series between the St. Louis Cardinals and the local Doves was staged this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock, with the died-in-the-wool fans on hand to witness the festivities.

Acting Manager Phelps of the Cardinals was most anxious to cop to-day's contest, for unless his team got the long end of the score the Doves would have the majority of the games of the series to their credit.

Bowerman injected a goodly portion of pepper into his players during morning practice in hopes of producing another winning contest this afternoon, for he was set on breaking his run of hard luck by making the visitors accept defeat.

The reversal of form shown by the Dove twirlers in the Saturday contest gave Big Mike something to occupy his mind over Sunday and he did considerable figuring on his twirler for this afternoon. It took him until the very last minute to decide.

LEGAL BATTLE OVER $225,000 LOAN ORDERS

Three loan orders aggregating $225,000 signed to-day by Mayor W. F. Brooks of Cambridge, may result in an injunction and legal battle over the expenditure of the city's funs, if the threats of the Tax Payers' Association are carried out. The orders call for $75,000 for street work and $90,000 each for additions and repairs to two school houses.

The association is made up of about 200 of the leading citizens, and is the only body the city has which as a finance commission. The executive board had already protested these loan orders as excessive, because of their leaving but $125,000 in the city treasury, and now it is understood that they will appeal to the Superior Court for a restrainer.

At the banquet the count has been invited to address the Cadets, taking for his subject, "A Comparison of European and American Army Life."

SOUTH SIDE GROUNDS, Chicago, July 12.—Sorely disappointed at not having won most of the games of the series, the Red Sox lined up against the White Sox for the final battle this afternoon.

Failure to hit the ball lost them the last two games, but they were determined to get busy with the stick this afternoon.

Lake's men had still to face Big Ed Walsh and they shivered at the prospect of having to go against him this afternoon. They watched him warm up with the other White Sox twirlers and hoped that Manager Sullivan would decide the big fellow was not on edge.

The visitors came out to the park in the old-fashioned bus this afternoon. When they came out the first two days they used automobiles, but they overdid the thing, and Treasurer McBreen cut out the joy wagons. It seems that they were supposed to go six in a car, but some of them took along their friends and left members of the team on the sidewalk.

"Never again!" said Mr. McBreen when he heard about it, so the bus was used to-day.

ROBBERS FAIL TWICE TO GET $5,000 BOOTY

ASHAWAY, R. I., July 12.—Two attemps to blow open the safe of the Ashaway national bank to-day failed, the vault doors resisting the explosives and the burglars being interrupted in their work by the villagers awakened by the explosions. The robbers escaped, covering their flight with revolvers. In the safe was $5,000.

The attempted robbery was apparently planned with care, as the bank, while located in a small town and occupying a small wooden building, is one of the substantial institutions of the State, doing considerable business with firms engaged in granite quarrying and manufacturing.

Two charges of explosions had been used when persons living nearby, awakened by the noise, began investigations. Those who first raised their windows were threatened by a man with drawn revolvers who was on guard in front of the bank building. Before pursuit could be commenced the robbers had escaped.

An alarm was sent in all directions as early as possible after the affair became known here, but late this afternoon the police had obtained no clew.

$1,510 LOBBY FEE PAID BY ESSEX CO.

The largest item in to-day's returns under the lobby act filed with the Secretary of State is $1,510.24, which was paid by the Essex Company for services in opposition to a bill seeking to force the concern to build a safeguard above its dam in the Merrimac River. Of this F. E. Dunbar got $1,008.49 and Frank E. Ladd $501.75. Other items are: Field & Cowles paid Robert Homans $500 for services on insurance legislation; the Metropolitan park police paid Albert C. Apsey for services on the bill providing pensions for metropolitan park police officers; the Becker Milling Machine Company paid Grosvenor Calkins $350 for services on all legislation affecting the company's interests.

GALLOUPE FINED IN ASSAULT CASE

Horace T. Galloupe of No. 22 Barnes street, Dorchester, a member of the Dorchester Driving Club and owner of a large stable in Ashmont, was fined $10 in the District Court before Judge Reed to-day for assaulting Rutherford D. H. Morrill, an expressman. It was testified that on June 2 Galloupe stopped Morrill's team and demanded that he pay a claim of $9.50. When Morrill refused Galloupe started to unhitch the horse, and blows followed. Both men made complaints, but Judge Reed discharged Morrill.

MADHOUSE CONSPIRACY AGAINST SON CHARGED BY MRS. THAW IN BOOK

NEW YORK, July 12.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, has just finished writing a booklet on the case of her son, whose trial on habeas corpus proceedings came up before Justice Mills at White Plains to-day. It will be placed on sale.

It consists of fully 8,000 words and has a picture of Mrs. Thaw. In some parts it is particularly bitter, and she arraigns in strong terms men in high places who, she claims, were in league to prevent her son even securing a trial for killing White, but bent on railroading him to an insane asylum.

She refers to these men as men high in professional life—friends of Stanford White. She refers to them as blackmailers, perjurers and the like. She characterizes her son as "an average young man with a chivalrous nature, as shown by his efforts to break up disreputable places."

Vindication by Jerome.

She points out that Jerome's speech to the jury in the last trial is a vindication of her son's efforts, and says that while it was pretended that Thaw had delusions regarding these infamous dens, Jerome, in his summing up, admitted that the places existed. The introduction says:

> Doubtless I will be criticised by my friends and others for descending into the arena to thus openly combat the malevolent personality who has dominated my son's case since before his acquittal by the jury, and the commitment by Judge Dowling.
>
> But exceptional conditions demand exceptional treatment, and the fact that District Attorney Jerome has, on four occasions, left the quite sufficient responsibilities of his own district to pursue this case into a district within which, as he himself acknowledges with his own signature (see below), he has no jurisdiction, compels this unusual procedure on my part.
>
> The body of the pamphlet was intended for use should he succeed in having another judge move the case to New York. All know this would never be agreed to by my son and his counsel, and that the motion was not made in good faith. Delay is all that was aimed at, doubtless with the same hope that Jerome expressed when, after the first trial, he said he would "delay the second trial in the hope that Thaw would go crazy in the Tombs." I find it very difficult to write dispassionately of so palpable crimes against justice and the constitutional rights of American citizens.

Charge of Persecution.

From Mrs. Thaw's communication to the newspapers, June 16:

"Unless this persecution is based upon the meanest animosity, or he is acting for others, Mr. Jerome will not again attempt to browbeat the Judge at White Plains to-morrow."

The following two letters, on official paper with his own signature, make it perfectly clear that Mr. Jerome is laboring under no delusion as to his duties, and therefore he must be actuated either by malice or is catering to rich evildoers.

The first letter, dated June 2, is as follows:

"Henry Marks, Esq., Matteawan State Hospital, Fishkill-on-Hudson, New York:

"Dear Sir—I have your letter of May 30. Since your conviction I have no further jurisdiction in your case. Very truly yours,

"WILLIAM TRAVERS JEROME,
"District Attorney."

The second letters, dated June 14, to "John Healy, Esq., Matteawan State Hospital, Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y.: "Dear Sir—I have your letter of June 14 asking me to assist you to secure a release. After your commitment the District Attorney has no authority in your case whatsoever. Very truly yours,

"WILLIAM TRAVERS JEROME,
"District Attorney."

"The Secret Unveiled."

Immediately following the introduction, and under the head of "The Secret Unveiled," Mrs. Thaw continues:

> Having determined to stay near my son until he is released from this illegal imprisonment, my family and I waited hopefully four months for the decision of the Appellate Division, only to be bitterly disappointed when it came.
>
> Certain facts should be known that will, in a measure, explain the hostility shown toward my son and the vindictive persecution he has endured.
>
> When I returned from Europe in 1906 I found a cowardly combination made up of men of professional standing, together with disappointed blackmailers, perjurers and others, all working in the interests of the very rich companions of Stanford White. To prevent a trial, which they feared would result in exposure, they set to work to blacken the character of my son, an average young man with a chivalrous nature, as shown by his attempt to break up these disreputable places. Then, in order to discredit anything said in contradiction, the family, living and dead, was attacked by slanderous falsehoods, as never before known in any trial. The influence at that time was tremendously strong.

"Jerome Admitted Charges."

> They pretended that my son had insane delusions regarding those three infamous dens and their uses. But, like Balaam, who, when hired by Balak to curse Israel, instead "blessed them altogether." So Jerome, in his speech to the last jury, was unexpectedly moved to reveal the truth. He admitted all H. K. Thaw and Anthony Comstock had stated was true, and himself added charges in terms more severe than any they had used. Since January I have had a copy of the court records with these denunciations, some of them in language I would not care to repeat. What I quote is significant, and makes his attitude since the acquittal incomprehensible.
>
> For example: "There were places in Twenty-second street and Twenty-fourth street * * * maintained by a lot of miserable degenerates, some of whom are still living to-day in this town."

"Comments on Jerome."

The next sub-head is entitled "Comments on Jerome." Under this head Mrs. Thaw prints the remarks of the District Attorney, in which he is quoted as saying that alienists were a disgrace to the administration of the law.

Then follows a letter written by H. K. Thaw to his own alienists while Thaw was an inmate of the Matteawan State Hospital. This letter Mrs. Thaw has refused to make public until the pamphlet appears. It was never sent to the physicians because Thaw refused to allow the hospital authorities to read it, and consequently it would have been against the rules of the institution to have it mailed.

"DEAD MAN" GOES HOME, WELL MAN

WORCESTER, July 12.—Joseph Renillard, the man "brought back to life" by an electric current ten minutes after he had been declared dead from heat exhaustion, on June 26, was to-day discharged from the city Hospital a well man. He had sufficient strength to walk to his home, No. 60 Orange street, nearly three-quarters of a mile away.

CLINTON WOMAN 100 YEARS TO-DAY

CLINTON, July 12.—Mrs. Margaret Lunan Laird, widow of John Laird, to-day observed the 100th anniversary of her birth at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. A. Marshall. She was born in Lundie, Forfarshire, Scotland, and has been a resident of Clinton and Manchester for over fifty years. OFFERS WEEK'S PAY TO ACTING MAYOR

LYNN, July 12.—Mayor James E. Rich sprung a new one at City Hall to-day, when, upon returning from a week's absence on account of the death of his mother, he took his week's pay, $52, and offered it to Alderman F. M. Turnbull, who has been acting Mayor. Mr. Turnbull refused the offer, however, and satisfied himself with the praises of the Mayor for the work he has done while in the executive chair.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS
Up to Midnight, London Time

King Edward's Wine Cellars Going Dry.

LONDON—The annual replenishment of the royal wine cellars is about to take place. Agents are leaving for France, Spain and Portugal, where they will secure the pick of the market. The whole of the still wines, such as port, claret and Chablis, are purchased in bulk and are bottled in the basement of St. James's Palace, where there is a complete bottling factory. It is from these very extensive cellars that the whole of the wine for the royal residences, as well as for Marlborough House, Cumberland Lodge and Clarence House, is drawn. Champagne and other sparking wines are brought ready bottled and as far as possible distributed equally among the leading firms whose wines come up to the required standard. The King, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught are connoisseurs in wine.

Novelist Prevost a Lucullus.

PARIS—Marcel Prevost, the novelist and the latest elected Academician, seems to be something of a Lucullus. M. Prevost likes ortolans, but "they must have been fattened for six months in a cage in my own house." A certain "estouffade de boeuf" seems a simple dish, but it "must have simmered slowly for two days." Roast saddle of lamb sounds equally simple fare, but when M. Prevost has it at home he will eat only lamb that has been brought up since birth by two ewes, "devoted entirely to the service of that one lamb." One of his favorite sweet dishes is compounded merely of milk, eggs, sugar and vanilla, but "it takes exactly twenty-four hours in the making." Of course, the novelist's cook is a stout matron from Gascony, and he despises men chefs, especially Parisians.

All Berlin Now on Rollers.

BERLIN—Roller skating has become so general in Berlin that it has almost ceased to be regarded as a pastime and is employed as the swiftest and most economical means of conveyance. Business people of both sexes skate to their offices, and crowds of maid servants with baskets on their arms can be seen gliding gaily off to the market place. Public messenger and telegraph boys are equipped with rollers, and even the smart woman does not scorn to use this mode of locomotion when paying an afternoon call.

Billings Horses Capture Moscow.

ST. PETERSBURG—A dispatch to the Novoe Vremya from Moscow says that the trotting races there were given additional importance by an exhibition of C. K. G. Billings's trotters. Lou Dillon, driven by her trainer, made a splendid showing, while Terle, driven by Mr. Billings, gave a superb performance. Women threw flowers at the horses as they were led past the tribunes. The trotting society gave a banquet in honor of Mr. Billings and presented him with a loving cup.

Cobra Poison an Insanity Test.

VIENNA—Dr. Much is conducting a series of interesting experiments with the poison of cobras, which, he says, locates insanity in man, if there is any, the blood of human beings tinged with insanity reacting when brought into contact with the cobra poison. The doctor and his assistants will not announce any decision until a hundred experiments are completed. The cobra poison is supposed to react when brought into contact with the blood of idiots, victims of paranoia, hysteria and paralysis.

Phenomenal Storm in Panama.

PANAMA—Preceded by suffocating heat all day, a phenomenal electric storm occurred Saturday night, lasting three hours. The wind blew with hurricane force and there were dazzling lightning flashes and violent thunder reports. Torrential rains fell all night. The city was in utter darkness and street traffic was suspended while the storm was raging. Many trees were blown down. The zinc roofing was blown from many sheds and houses.

New Fevrier Musical Treat.

PARIS—Paris is soon to have a new musical treat. Henri Fevrier, the already renowned composer of "Mona Vana," produced last Winter at the Opera House, Paris, is now writing a new opera on "Carmosine," the charming poem of Alfred de Musset. The first two acts are already finished and the young composer hopes to be able to complete the work for the Winter season.

Tokio Grafter Commits Hari-Kari.

TOKIO—M. Sakao, president of the Japan Sugar Company, convicted during the recent trial of the so-called sugar scandal cases, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. Sakao was one of the twenty-three persons on whom sentence was pronounced a few days ago.

Paris Pockets in Petticoats.

PARIS—The difficulty in reaching the Parisian feminine pocket has been recognized judicially. A thief was charged with picking a lady's pocket in the crowd which watched the Chauchard funeral. A policeman explained that Paris ladies wear pockets in their petticoats, rendering the operation of pickpockets decidedly difficult. The judge, being a married man, recognized the point and immediately found the accused guilty.

GRAFTERS ARE ASSIGNED JOBS AT THE ISLAND

Michael J. Mitchell, former purchasing agent for the city, to-day began work as a hospital attendant at the House of Correction, and Thomas F. Maher, a contractor, took up his duties at the Deer Island Institution as a carpenter. These two men will thus serve out their sentences of one year each for conspiracy to defraud the city in a flagstone contract.

The work was selected for them by James H. Cronin, the master, as best fitted to their abilities. Maher, as a contractor, knows all about carpentry, and Mitchell was found to be adapted to hospital work.

Both men will receive the same treatment accorded any inmate. Their bill of fare is plain food, and friends are not allowed to send them dainties. However, it is permitted that a friend can pay for extra food up to $1 per week, supplying the money only, the buying being left to the officials. The men will be allowed to smoke only at certain times, an hour and a half each night and twice on Sunday.

No effort will be made to obtain a pardon for Mitchell. Mitchell's friends have had a number of conferences since his sentence and one of his most intimate friends who was a party to the discussions stated to the AMERICAN to-day that they are satisfied that any effort to obtain a pardon would be futile.

Providing that Mitchell and Maher are deemed good prisoners by the institution authorities they may be liberated in a trifle short of six months and for that reason it is understood that Governor Draper and members of his council would frown on any effort to shorten the sentence.

Under the law the prisoners will get one day off a month for good behavior, and at the end of six months, minus the twelve days that will be due them for good conduct, they may petition the probation officer of the Superior Court to reopen their case. If that official, after due consideration, deems it judicious to recommend the parole of the prisoners he may make the recommendation to the penal institution commissioner, and it is discretionary with that official to accept or reject the recommendation.

Penal Institutions Commissioner Skinner stated to-day that if any such recommendation were made to him that he would undoubtedly accept it and place the prisoners upon parole with such restrictions as he deemed suitable. In that event the prisoners would be liberated in January.

Lawyer Francis J. Carney, attorney for Maher, said to-day that he knew nothing of a petition being gotten up asking for the pardon of his client.

MORGAN HONOR GUEST OF KING

LONDON, July 12.—J. Pierpont Morgan knows King Edward as well as he knows anybody in Wall street. The King and the financier meet frequently nowadays. Last Friday night Mr. Morgan was the most conspicuous guest at Ambassador Reid's dinner to the King and Queen. When Lewis Harcourt had the King at Nuneham Park for a week-end, Morgan was there to meet a brilliant coterie of the King's intimates.

The Queen was not present, but among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Keppel, the Earl and Countess Carrington, Lord and Lady Saville, the Earl and Countess Granard, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burns.

PICKPOCKETS WORK IN L STATION CROWDS

Two pickpockets were arrested at the Sullivan square terminal and several victims reported losses at other stations. William Duffey, twenty-four, and Harry Davis, twenty-two, both claiming to reside in New York, were seized at Sullivan square. At Dudley street David Wasserman, No. 251 Cambridge street, discovered after he had been jostled in the crowd that his wallet had disappeared and $65.

GLOUCESTER, July 12.—In a suit brought against Mayor Henry H. Parsons of this city, William D. Clark, an attorney, seeks to recover $150 for services he alleges were rendered during the poorhouse investigation of 1908 in behalf of Overseer John Parsons, the Mayor's father.

MRS. W. T. BULL, CUT OFF FROM A $300,000 FORTUNE

GIRL WITNESS IN SUTTON CASE IS A FUGITIVE

NEW YORK, July 12.—Developments have been coming thick and fast in the mysterious case of Lieut. James N. Sutton of the Marine Corps, who was shot to death at Annapolis in October, 1907, since his mother, Mrs. James N. Sutton of Portland, Ore., who declares he was murdered, obtained the order for an official inquiry which begins next Monday, at which she will endeavor to clear his memory of the stigma of suicide.

Many witnesses are now coming forward who will testify to incidents which it is asserted all tend to show that Sutton was shot by a brother officer, and that his death did not occur in the manner described at the inquiry at that time.

Miss Mary E. Stewart of Pittsburg, to whom it is alleged young Sutton was engaged, is an important witness in the case. She is said to have hurried from her home to Canada with the intention of staying there until the new investigation is over.

Mrs. Sutton says her son was with Miss Stewart until a few minutes before midnight on the night he was killed, and that through Miss Stewart she could prove that Sutton was not at the dance at Carvell Hall as had been alleged.

It is declared to-day that the defeat of United States Senator Charles W. Fulton of Oregon, for re-election was largely due to the fact that he made no serious efforts to have the Navy Department reopen the investigation into Sutton's death. Evidence on which is based the assertion that Sutton did not kill himself includes the statement that he did not have time to go to his room after the alleged quarrel with other officers and get a revolver with which it was declared he shot himself; the nature of the wound in the back of the head; the fact that his own revolver was found in his room after his death and a denial that he was intoxicated as charged.

Mrs. Sutton, who has been at West Point attending her son, Cadet Rodando Sutton, who is recovering from the effects of a hazing, will go to Washington to-morrow to be present at the inquiry.

Severe Cold in the Alps.

VEVEY, Switzerland—It has been snowing heavily up in the Alps during the week. It is many years since there has been such a wintry July. In some places in the mountains the cows had to be sent down again to the valleys on account of the intense cold, the pastures being covered with snow.

WIDOW LOST BULL RICHES IN QUARREL

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—Shortly before his death—perhaps in his last illness—former Representative Melville Bull is said to have destroyed the will by which he had bequeathed the greater part of his riches to his nephew and his sister-in-law, Mrs. William T. Bull, widow of the famous surgeon.

The will was drawn within the last few months, it is said, and the cause of the sudden difficulty or disagreement between Mrs. Bull and the ex-congressman, whose funeral took place last Friday, is a complete mystery outside the family centre.

The large estate of the man who was head of the Newport Gas Company and identified with many institutions here, will now be divided between his two brothers, Charles M. Bull of Brooklyn, Henry Bull of Newport and Mrs. Frank Smythe of Meadow Brook, Pa., and his nephew, William T. Bull, Jr.

There are rumors that litigation may develop over the final settlement of the estate. Melville Bull was part owner of the Perry House and the Opera House here, and he had a large farm at Middletown, not far from the residences of Reginald and Alfred Vanderbilt. His fortune is estimated at $300,000.

Melville Bull was a "chum" of his brother, the surgeon, and on several occasions, when ill, Dr. Bull and his wife nursed him back to health. Their little boy, William T. Bull, Jr., was a pet of Uncle Melly.

When Dr. Bull died Mrs. Bull became the part owner of the Perry House and Opera House properties and something occurred between brother-in-law and sister-in-law and the will, making Mrs. William T. Bull and her son William the principal beneficiaries, was destroyed before Melville Bull was removed from the Perry House last month.

C. H. CHAPMAN GOES TO STATE PRISON

PROVIDENCE, July 12.—Carroll H. Chapman, a member of the Young & Holland Co., which suspended several years ago, must serve two years in State Prison and pay a fine of $2,500, according to the sentence imposed to-day in the United States Circuit Court. He was convicted of conspiring to defeat the bankruptcy law and of perjury. He was sentenced to two years' imprisonment on both the perjury and the conspiracy charges, but is to serve the sentences concurrently. Two weeks ago George Roukous, reputed to be the wealthiest Assyrian in Providence, and Joseph Adams of Rockland, Maine, were found guilty on the charge of conspiring with Chapman, but they have appealed.

COL. ALBERT POPE SERIOUSLY ILL

Colonel Albert Pope, head of the Pope Manufacturing Company, is seriously ill at his home in Cohasset. While it was known that Colonel Pope was not in the best of health, his friends were not aware that his ailment is as serious as it is now believed to be.

He has been confined to his bed for many weeks now, but his physicians look for an improvement in his condition in the near future.

Hundreds of inquirers came from all over New England to the X-Zalia Corporation asking about Trixie, and offering him a good home. With Mr. Crosby Trixie will have the best of care and plenty of outdoor life.

TAFT HOME INVADED ON SHORE SIDE

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Special Representative of the Boston American at Beverly.

BEVERLY, July 12.—It is likely that the guard about the Summer White House will have to be reinforced by the addition of a secret service motor boat to keep away the curious from the water side of the estate. When the Tafts hired the Stetson cottage they were pleased to find that the house was invisible from the public roads on either side. It was noticed that the ocean side was open, but no one paid any attention to that except to remark on the beautiful outlook.

The presidential family was awakened to the situation on the water front yesterday when about every boat on the North Shore kept sailing up and down in front of the Taft beach and had every opportunity to see any of the family who came out of the house.

Excursion Boats in Demand.

A marine "rubber-neck wagon" did a good business all day. It was a small steamer and made regular trips from Salem Willows, bringing a crowd each time. The boat went up and down the beach, as near as it could, and those on board were armed with every variety of field, marine or opera glass, also cameras.

Other boats came and went. One man with his family in a small launch ran close to the beach and anchored, and the guard on shore asked him to move away. The man replied that he was going to see every member of the Taft family first, and then quoted Byron thus: "Man rules the land, but his domain stops at the shore." Finally he tired of waiting and chugged away.

Church people to-day are wondering if President Taft will be the only regular church attendant of the family during the season. The Unitarian edifice, where Mr. Taft has been thus far, was crowded yesterday, as was St. Peter's Episcopal, where it was expected Mrs. Taft might come, but none of the family was at any church.

G. A. R. Plans Beverly Parade.

With President Taft in Beverly, the Grand Army veterans of Post 89 of that city are to make an endeavor to have the big Essex County parade held in the Summer capital in September.

John H. Chipman, Jr., Post 89 has voted to put the entire matter into the hands of Alvin A. Hanscomb, commander of the post and a member of the county committee. Commander Hanscomb is very enthusiastic over the opportunity for a parade in Beverly, and will try to impress upon his comrades from other cities and towns the advantages that would come from parading in Beverly where there is a possibility that President Taft might review the gray-haired veterans.

Beverly has not had a Grand Army parade for twenty-six years, the last occurring when the soldiers' monument was dedicated.

BIG SHOE CITIES HAVE DAY AT FAIR

The schedule for next week will be: Tuesday, National Shoe and Leather Finding Association convention, Assembly Hall; Wednesday, meeting of Michigan Shoe Dealers' Association; Thursday, special for Rockland manufacturers; Saturday, Boston Day.

DEMOCRATIC MACHINE OPPOSED TO VAHEY AS PARTY LEADER AGAIN

The Democratic State Committee, at this early stage of the gubernatorial campaign, finds itself in a unique position. It is out of debt. Not a dollar does it owe, and as a consequence the members are jubilant and have begun to look to the future with some of that old-time optimism that characterized former successful fights.

Boston and people throughout the Commonwealth are beginning to wonder what the party has in store for the Fall. What sort of a campaign will be put up, how it will be financed and who will be the candidate, are questions that are being discussed with increasing interest as the days pass.

It is generally understood that if James H. Vahey becomes the candidate, there will be no more money with which to carry on the contest than there was last year. It is known that there has been a quiet but persistent effort made to show Mr. Vahey that this is the psychological year for him to stand aside and let some other man of a more formidable character step into the arena.

"Show Me," Vahey's Attitude.

But Mr. Vahey has shown no disposition to get out of the fight. He says that he is entitled to the nomination because he made a good run the last time, and that he proposes to stand on his rights unless it is shown him that there is some other man who could make a better race.

And it may be mentioned here that Vahey does not believe that Colonel William A. Gaston, or any of the old conservative members of the party can make a better run than he can.

Chairman Fred McLeod of the State Committee admitted to-day the problem that the "sinews of war" for the next campaign is one of the potential factors considered. He would not indicate any preference that he may have for the man who possesses the greatest number of qualifications to carry the Democratic flag to victory.

"The committee has no candidate at present," averred Mr. McLeod. "That is an absolute fact. Of course, I appreciate the fact that we have got to have money to make the right kind of a fight, but there are other things, too, that must be taken into consideration."

"For instance?" suggested the reporter.

"Well, convictions — principles — force. You know; a man who can impress the rank and file of the party—a real, genuine Democrat, with the right stuff in him. It is mighty important that we have such a candidate as that."

Fitz Not Out of the Race.

Thomas A. Mullen, former Schoolhouse Commissioner, is being talked of as a candidate under certain contingencies. One of these is that John F. Fitzgerald should decide to get out of the contest. Mullen is a scholar. He is a Harvard graduate and was an instructor in the Boston Latin School for several years. It is urged by his friends that he would make a fine compromise candidate and would be able to unify the various divisions of the party.

But there is a very large BUT right here.

Fitzgerald is not out of the race. Every man who read his remarkably virile interview in yesterday's AMERICAN knows just how the former Mayor stands on that question. He is in the fight and he invites the attention of the people of Boston, and the whole country for that matter, in these snappy words:

"Watch me!"

And there are others besides Fitzgerald himself who have faith in him. Two of the most prominent Democratic politicians in this city told a reporter for the AMERICAN to-day that Fitzgerald was not out of the running by any means.

"Fitzgerald will appeal to the people in his own unique, forcible way. He will appeal to the sympathy of the people. He will demand vindication."

That is what the two politicians said substantially. And they paraphrased Fitzgerald's words: "Watch him!"

The Mitchell-Maher graft case naturally comes up in Fitzgerald political talk of the day. It is the belief of some close observers that the convictions will have no political effect.

"No Political Effect."

David T. Montague, acting president of the Republican City Committee, had this to say on this phase of the matter:

"In my opinion these graft convictions have no political effect whatever in the coming city campaign. They will have an effect on individuals, but the individual grafter does not drag down his entire party. It is a matter of individuals and not of party. I cannot see how either political party can be affected by the graft disclosures or convictions, for the grafter is an individual."

"Honest John" Quinn, Jr., when asked to-day if the conviction of Mitchell and Maher would have any effect on the Democratic campaign this Fall, said:

"I do not believe that the Mitchell-Maher affair will have any weight in the coming campaign. You know the public is fickle; it condemns to-day, weeps to-morrow and forgets and forgives the following day. This conviction won't help the Republican party a whit."

"No Man Higher Up."

Almost since the beginning of the world public officials have been prosecuted, and the history of politics shows that their wrong-doing has been regarded as that of the individual and had no detrimental effect on the party.

"Mitchell will always be remembered as he has been known — 'Smiling Mike Mitchell'. He was unfortunate, but I feel sure it will not affect his party."

When asked about "The Man Higher up," Mr. Quinn laughed and answered:

"There is no Man Higher Up."

Herman Hormel, secretary of the Republican City Committee, said:

"The Republican party stands for honesty and good government. It is opposed to graft, and has tried to give the citizens of Boston officeholders who believe the same. When an officeholder (Republican) has not followed these principles he has found it almost impossible to be returned to office in recent years.

"As to making this matter an issue in the coming campaign, we believe that the citizens of Boston are intelligent enough to discriminate between the parties who stand for or against graft, and we are willing to abide by their judgment.

Former Senator Charles H. Innes, one of the leaders in the Republican party of the city, said:

"I am of the opinion that the graft revelations will help the Republicans in the coming city campaign. The graft disclosures show the people that a system of corruption has existed under Democratic administration of municipal affairs. The people are discerning and the Republican party must be the gainer.

"I realize that most of the grafters individually are Democratts and that the party might be unjustly held responsible, but I think it will be held responsible anyhow."

ONE HUNDRED TOURISTS OFF FOR NIAGARA

One hundred BOSTON AMERICAN tourists, school boys and school girls, with their escorts and chaperones, left the South Station to-day over the Boston & Albany Railroad for a week's sightseeing in New York, Washington and Niagara Falls.

It was a gay party that boarded the special cars attached to the 9:15 a. m. train which arrived in New York at 3:15 this afternoon. Automobiles at the Grand Central Depot transferred the tourists to their hotel, where the rest of the day was spent in rest and preparation for a strenuous day of sight-seeing to-morrow.

There were cheers for the BOSTON AMERICAN at South Station, not alone from the contestants, but from the hundreds of the friends and relatives of the fortunate winners. Each of the children and their adult escorts wore red, white and blue badges of neat design, identifying them as members of the BOSTON AMERICAN party. The start went off with much eclat and everybody was in the pleasantest mood and prepared for a jolly week's outing.

The party will not return until just a week from to-day and will have visited all of the sights of New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Niagara Falls, spending two and one-half days in New York, two days in Washington and a day at Niagara Falls. Special cars will be used by the party.

50 AMERICAN GIRLS ATTEND TONGS' PICNIC

Yee Wah, "Mayor of Chinatown," and president of the On Leong Tong, took charge to-day of the second annual picnic under the auspices of the Chinese Merchants' Association of Boston.

The Governor Andrew left Otis wharf at 8:45 a. m. with 600 Chinese and 100 invited guests on board. There was music by a special Chinese band, which made a noise like the Night Before the Fourth.

Fifty American girls attended the picnic, as well as a number of American wives of Chinese. Among the Chinese-American children on board were May Loy, eight years old, and Edward Loy, her brother, ten years old, both born in America. One baby took the trip with its American mother.

With true Celestial stolidness most of the Chinese, as well as the Americans who attended, refused to give their names or talk to newspaper men.

Peddock's Island was the place where the Chinese let loose for their annual holiday. A large open-air dining hall was provided for the small army of Chinese, and at noon sharp they enjoyed a seashore dinner with all the fixings. The evening fireworks will be the event of the day. For months the set pieces and strange Chinese squibs, rockets, bombs, skyrockets, Roman candles, dragons and serpents have been in preparation. Chinese experts will set off the pieces and the orchestra will play Chinese songs and instrumental music dear to the heart of the people of the Yellow Empire.

The invited guests were: Hon. Edward P. Barry of the Governor's Council, Judge Gallagher of New York City, Deputy Superintendent William B. Watts and Inspectors Daniel Hart and Edward Conway. Most of these men went down to Peddock's Island on the first trip. Other boats followed during the day. The merrymakers return at 9:30 to-night.

Birds' Nests, Sharks' Fins.

Yee Wah acted like the boss of the outing. Soo Wing was next in authority. Both bore themselves with mandarin dignity and gave orders in voices pitched in a high key.

Every guest got a welcome which was as gracious as if extended by a Spanish grandee. They smiled at the American guests with great affability.

The Orientals took a great load of stores with them for their lunch and the big banquet this evening. There were many delicacies which were brought all the way from China. There were liquors distilled from rice; preserved birds' nests and sharks' fins for soups.

The outing was held at the West End Hotel and grounds at Peddock's Island, it being the second time the Chinese have gone down the harbor. Most every member of the On Leong Tong was in the party.

Although the Chinese would say nothing about it, Deputy Superintendent Watts and his plain clothes men, with the On Leong Tongs as guests, had the idea that the celebration was inspired by an intense feeling of relief. Members of this tong think that the Hep Sings, their arch enemies, will never again dare to shoot them up as they did two years ago.

Among the police officials were Inspectors Edward Conway and Daniel Hart. They know the ins and outs of Chinatown as few men do. The Chinamen think them "first chop mandarins." Nothing was too good for the police to-day.

The On Leongs took Yung Yung's orchestra. Some of the strange looking instruments were invented before the first violin was made. These have never been changed or improved.

Yung Yung is a wonder in his way. He can play several instruments at one time and smoke cigarettes and talk with his boys while doing it.

A want advt. is often the road to fortune.

SNAKE CHARMER IN SOCIETY WAR

Just what is the social standing of a snake charmer is a vital subject that is puzzling the Summer colony at York. It is all due to the fact that Trixie Roderiga, a famous snake charmer, has arrived at that country retreat.

Whether or not the fashionable residents of this colony should pay their respects to Trixie has created not a little animosity amongst neighbors, who hold different views concerning their social duties. Miss Roderiga, however, is not even slightly embarrassed by the attitude of her neighbors, and she who handles with ease the most dangerous reptiles obtainable simply sits back laughing, and makes no bones about saying that she doesn't care whether or not her fashionable neighbors condescend to call on her.

TROOPS RUSHED TO COAL MINES

HALIFAX, N. S., July 12.—The second military train sent by the authorities here at the request of the coal companies of Cape Breton, whose miners are on a strike, arrived to-day at Inverness, C. B. The first train took 500 soldiers and two machine guns to Glace Bay, where 4,000 men are out and 6,000 are affected. It is chiefly the Belgians who are making trouble at Inverness.

The striking miners declare that they will make one supreme effort to-day to gain their ends, either by force or strategy. It was this threat, which resulted in the bringing of the soldiers.

BOSTON MEN TAKE PART IN NEW RETREAT FOR THE CATHOLIC LAITY

William J. O'Donnell, the well-known attorney of No. 15 Beacon street, and Charles Palmer Davis, the editorial writer of New York, formerly of this city, were among the eighteen laymen who completed in New York to-day the first one of the laymen's weekly retreats just instituted at Fordham University.

This movement is entirely new in this country. It is not only new in this country, but it is comparatively new in the Catholic Church. It has been tried with marked success in some places abroad. The Belgium laymen's retreat was sought by 10,000 men last year.

The retreat is a weekly Friday-to-Monday retirement of laymen for rest, meditation and religious refreshment, not for recreation or social pleasure.

Movement Open to All.

Lawyers, clerks, business men and laymen generally are represented. The movement is open to all. A distinctive feature of it is that it is open to men of all conditions of life. It is not limited to Catholics. The question of religious belief is not raised. It happened that the eighteen men availing themselves of the first retreat were all Catholics, but it is expected and hoped that it will become inter-denominational.

The movement was organized in New York by Sydney J. Finlay, a business man. The spiritual director is the Rev. Terence Shealy, S. J., professor of jurisprudence at Fordham University. He will be master of the whole movement. Mr. Finlay is secretary.

The wide variety of professions and occupations represented at this initial retreat is shown in the list of men who attended besides Mr. Davis and Mr. O'Donnell, as follows:

George S. Floyd-Jones of Massapequa, Municipal Justice George F. Roesch, John A. Tennant, publisher; Joseph H. Fargis and James M. Tully, lawyers; Charles H. Schultz of Summit, N. J., a former Protestant Episcopal clergyman; Edward J. Cornelius, S. H. Horgan, Gerald Donnelly, Fred S. Jackson, Arthur Dignam, Frank S. Wanlen, John J. Dunphy, V. A. Cullen and Patrick M. Brennan.

One of these men is a convert, whose former pastor tried to prevent him turning to the Catholic church. By odd coincidence, that pastor is now a Catholic, though not a priest.

Retreat Ends To-day.

The first retreat began on Friday and ended to-day. The plan is to have them fifty times a year, every week end except at Christmas and Easter. The next retreat will begin on July 30.

As this was the opening retreat, the scheduled program was slightly changed for organization and other purposes. Ordinarily the retreat will be one of silence. The men will not even speak to one another during the three days' rest. But except for the business and social meeting, the following routine was observed from Friday to Sunday night.

6:00 A. M.—Rising.
6:30 A. M.—Meditation.
7:30 A. M.—Mass.
7:45 A. M.—Breakfast.
9:00 A. M.—Instruction.
11:00 A. M.—Conference, one hour.
12:15 P. M.—Examination of conscience.
12:30 P. M.—Dinner.
3:30 P. M.—Instruction.
5:00 P. M.—Recitation of rosary.
6:30 P. M.—Supper.
8:00 P. M.—Instruction, one hour.
Retire at will.

There is a broader plan in these retreats than that of mere rest. It is hoped by the leaders that it may counteract the commercialism of modern life which has now made business and religion so divergent. They believe that socialism and anarchy are encouraged by the falling away of all religious teaching in general life.

TESTING SHIPS OFF THE CAPE

PROVINCETOWN, July 12.—Standardization tests of their propellers are being made to-day by the battleships in the first division of the great Atlantic fleet. The Connecticut, Vermont, Kansas and Louisiana left here early to-day for Woods End grounds, where the tests are being conducted.

It was announced to-day that the other ships would remain here until Wednesday, when they are to sail to join the first division at sea for target practice in small arms and to engage in mimic battles.

San Francisco Bay and Hampton Roads alone in this country have witnessed such a spectacular marine picture as greeted the eyes of the 900 persons who came from Boston by water to see the fleet.

SLEEPING SICKNESS IS NOT DUE TO FLY

NEW YORK, July 12.—The Tse-Tse fly, the insect that jumped from scientific obscurity to public notice on the eve of Theodore Roosevelt's departure for Africa, received a certificate of character at the Rockefeller Institute. Dr. S. J. Melzer, one of the affiliated specialists, announces that the dreaded sleeping sickness is carried by the tse-tse fly only incidentally, that is, from one already infected, to a fresh subject. His bite is not venomous, says the physician, but the real offender is the only disease germ known to have the power of locomotion—the trypanosum.

FIGHTS BIG SWORDFISH

Andrew Ives, a Gloucester fisherman on the schooner Nocomis, arrived at T wharf to-day, laid up with a badly cut arm as the result of a fight with a giant swordfish, the biggest in the catch. Ives and the fish had a run-in on the Georges banks and the fisherman lives to tell the story only because he was quick with his lance.

Swordfish are harpooned when they are sleeping on the surface. This one got the gaff in his head, and few fishermen will put out after one in the mad scene that follows. Ives went out against the advice of his mates and the 300-pound fish charged his dory, ripping a hole through the side with a three-foot sword. This threw Ives, and the fish in pulling back for another blow whipped him across the arm with the sword, cutting a deep gash. The fish charged twice and the dory was sinking before Ives could get a lance into the vitals of the shark. By this time other men had come to the rescue and the fish was landed.

CHURCH ASKS LEPER MISSIONARY TO STAY

The Rev. H. A. Manchester, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, East Boston, who recently received a call to become United States secretary of the mission to lepers in India and the East, has been prevailed upon by his congregation to defer sending in his resignation for a few months at least. It is probable, however, that Mr. Manchester will do so within the year, as it was his first intention to assume the office this Summer.

ROOSEVELT HUNTS RARE ANTELOPES

NAIVASHA, British East Africa, July 12.—The Roosevelt expedition, which has been hunting for the past five weeks in the Sotik district, arrived at the farm of Captain Richard Attenborough, on the south shore of Lake Naivasha to-day. J. Cunningame, the general manager of the expedition, came into Captain Attenborough's in advance of the others and left at daybreak to-day to meet Mr. Roosevelt and guide him in. Cunningame had a hard trip, and on the last day of his journey his porters were without food or water.

Mr. Roosevelt and his son will remain at Captain Attenborough's only long enough to bag three hippopotami, a bull, a cow and a calf; a specimen of the rare digdig antelope, a bush buck and a baboon.

They will then move on to the ranch of Lord Delemere, one of the game wardens of British East Africa, to hunt with him for ten days at Njoro. The other members of the party will stay at the camp of Captain Attenborough. The Captain is at present in Naivasha engaged in securing and shipping out supplies for the expedition.

Major E. A. Mearns, a member of the Roosevelt party, rode forty miles recently to give medical attention to three natives belonging to an expedition under O. C. Chapman, who had been severely mauled by a lion. In spite of his efforts, two of the men died.

EXPLOSION COSTS LIFE OF ENSIGN

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Ensign Hugh K. Aikin of the navy died aboard the armored cruiser North Carolina at Naples last night from injuries resulting from a coal gas explosion attributed to the generation of gas in the bunkers. He was born in New Orleans in 1884, and entered the service in 1902.

TORNADO KILLS SIX; 25 MORE FATALLY HURT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 12.—It is now believed that at least six persons were killed and from twenty to twenty-five fatally injured in the tornado which swept over Eastern South Dakota and Western Minnesota, nearly devastating Ortonville, Minn., and Big Stone, S. D.

At Big Stone a string of box cars housing a gang of railroad workmen was overturned. Three men were killed and nineteen other maimed. Cars were lifted from the rails, buildings crumpled up like cardboard and trees were uprooted and sent sailing through the air. Telephone and telegraph wires were blown down and communication is so badly handicapped that details of the full damage is hard to obtain. It is believed that the loss will go to $250,000.

Waterspout Also.

At Big Stone railroad roundhouses were demolished and many families rendered homeless. John DeGriff was killed by debris. William E. Chamberlain was seriously hurt when the wind literally blew his home to pieces.

At Abilene, Kan., a tornado with a waterspout in its wake did great damage. In five minutes two inches of rain fell. Hundreds of trees were blown down and business was at a standstill until the debris could be cleared from the streets. Parker's warehouse, the Abilene mill properties and St. Joseph's Academy were badly wrecked. Crops have suffered greatly.

At Pana, Ill., thousands of dollars' damage to crops was done. Houses were unroofed, and all electric light wires were blown down, leaving the place in total darkness.

Cloudburst at Zenia.

Half a dozen people were injured at Zenia, Ill., by falling debris in the cyclone. Although of only thirty seconds' duration, the storm did heavy damage. The residences of Robert Holman and Edward Davis were demolished. Barns owned by Frederick Holman and Emmet Coldasuro were blown down. Robert Holman had his arm broken. Mrs. Davis and daughter were knocked insensible by flying timbers.

A cloudburst followed the storm, and practically all telephone and telegraph wires were levelled. The home and all the buildings on the farm of J. E. Tully were swept away.

BOY TRAMPS BOUND FOR CHICAGO HELD

LYNN, July 12.—Two boys, with twenty-five cents between them, are held in this city to-day pending investigation as to why they should be so anxious to begin at once a long tramp from Boston to Chicago. They are Frank Bentevegna, aged thirteen, and his brother, Antonio, aged six, and are at the City Farm, where they were sent yesterday. They say that they have a sister, Kate, in Boston, but they don't know where she lives or where she works except that it is in a machine shop. The boys appeared at the police station to ask the way, and there it was learned that they have a mother at No. 2,436 LaSalle street, Chicago.

ROYALTY IN COLLISION.

VIENNA, July 12.—The Duke of Cumberland's carriage collided with Don Alfonso of Bourbon's automobile. Don Alfonso jumped and escaped injury, nor was the Duke hurt. The Duke's coachman was crushed, however, and is dying.

350 ORPHANS HAVE BIG DAY AT NANTASKET

Three hundred and fifty children had a happy time to-day at Nantasket Beach as guests of Victor M. Weil, president of the Inter-Trust Security Company of this city, who paid all the expenses and made every possible provision for their enjoyment.

They had not only electric car rides and a boat trip down the harbor, but a trip to Paragon Park and the freedom of the beach and a banquet at a hotel, with ice cream and cake on the way home.

The children came from the Home for Little Wanderers, the Leopold Morse Home, from the asylum maintained by the Associated Jewish Charities and from the Helping Hand Temporary Home. The fatherless and motherless little girls and boys ranged in age from four to fourteen.

The cars stopped as near the orphan homes as possible, and in charge of matrons or other attendants the laughing, shouting little ones boarded the specials and were taken to Rowe's wharf and the steamboat. An orchestra accompanied the children from the Leopold Morse Home and played gay airs which set the little ones' feet moving and made them clap hands in glee. Sometimes their sweet, childish voices joined in merry choruses. They took the 9:20 boat. Mr. Weil was with the party and enjoyed it all as much as any of the helpless little folks.

When the boat reached Nantasket the children trooped to the beach, singing, dancing and giving full vent to their joy. They played in the sand, waded in the water and romped along the shore.

Dinner was served at the Nantasket Hotel and the children all had fine appetites. They made the rafters of the dining hall ring with merriment. After feasting there was more play on the beach until it came time to marshal the regiment of youngsters for the march to Paragon Park. Inside the children found themselves in a land of marvels. It was one huge dream of delight.

They were a tired and happy lot when it came time to take the boat back to Boston, and then the electric cars which carried them to their home.

ORANGEMEN OFF ON ANNUAL PICNIC

Two thousand Orangemen of thirty commanderies of the Royal Orange Institution marched to-day from the headquarters in Cambridge to Copley Square and the South Station, where they took a 9:30 special train to Lake Pearl in Wrentham. Ten thousand people were expected to attend the celebration which is the annual outing and picnic. Games, music and baseball will make the occasion a day of merry-making.

Thomas Nelligan, State Grand Master, was in the line of parade. He was followed by Albert J. Hall, chairman of the committee on arrangements; Robert Porter, director of ceremonies, and James Jance, chief marshal. The visiting guest was Supreme Grand Master William Dunlap of Philadelphia, who rode in one of the carriages with John Gibbon, State Grand Treasurer, and Ernest T. Master, Grand Deputy.

Give a Clean Milkman Your Trade

Our dairies are sanitary. Our cows are inspected; so are the men who milk them. We promise you germless milk. You will get from us nothing but rich Holstein milk, and the cost will be six cents per quart.

That is our proposition. We ask you to try us one day.

Get one can of Van Camp's and make one milk dish with it. Learn the flavor that comes from whole milk.

Serve it once in your coffee. Let your children drink one glass. Learn what pure milk means.

Find out, for one day, how convenient it is to have rich milk or cream when you want it.

We refer you to scores of your neighbors. We are their milkmen. Ask how they like our milk.

Then give us one chance to do for you what we have done for them.

Not a Half-Milk

When you taste your first milk dish made with Van Camp's, you'll be surprised at the richness and flavor.

You'll wonder what we have added.

But we add nothing at all.

You have been used to a half-milk, because milkman's milk separates. The butter fat rises and the solids fall, before and after you get it.

In Van Camp's, for the first time, you get whole, rich milk. And you learn what milk should be.

You'll never be content with milkman's milk after cooking one dish with Van Camp's.

The Natural Milk

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated. Nothing whatever is added. Nothing is subtracted save water.

It is only the richest milk, fresh from the cow, evaporated close to our dairies.

It is preserved solely by sterilization. So it comes to you as fresh as it came from the cow.

The slight almond flavor—apparent only when the milk is drunk cold—is due to sterilization. No milk can be pure without it.

When you heat the milk—as in cooking or coffee—this slight flavor disappears. Then you have but the natural flavor of the richest milk or cream.

Cheaper Than Raw Milk

Van Camp's is as thick as thick cream—so thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it doesn't cost half what you pay your milkman for cream.

Add two parts water and you have rich milk. The cost of such milk, when you buy Van Camp's by the case, is but six cents per quart.

Then you have no waste—no milk left over. That saving, in itself, is enormous.

So you have a cow in your kitchen—rich milk or cream whenever you want it. Yet it costs less than day-to-day buying.

You have a pure rich milk for less than you pay for a half-milk laden with germs.

Milk Without Germs

In Van Camp's you get milk without sickness; no germs of consumption from tubercular cows. None of the infections which make raw milk the most terrible foe of humanity.

Our cows are inspected; so are the men who milk them. Our dairies are sanitary. Our buildings are built without wood.

Then our milk is pasteurized.

Your children can drink Van Camp's without risk. You can serve it without serving disease.

Not so with milkman's milk. In every drop there lurks a myriad of germs, and you never know what they are.

Not Condensed Milk

Condensed milk is half sugar. You can't use it for cooking. Don't think that Van Camp's is like that.

Nor is it like other brands of evaporated.

Van Camp's Milk shows about 8 per cent of butter fat. That's because we use Holstein milk, and take out two-thirds the water.

But milk less rich, or with more water left in, may still be called "evaporated."

These lesser brands cost the same as Van Camp's. Be careful to get the best.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10-cent cans, at your grocer's. It is put up at our dairies, in five states, where we milk 20,000 Holstein cows.

NORTH SHORE SET PLANNING BIG TAFT FETE

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

North Shore society is looking anxiously forward to August 4, when the grand celebration of Gloucester Day, in honor of President Taft, occurs. Of the 200 boxes for the pageant, 150 have already been sold, and plans galore are being made for house parties, dances, dinners and all sorts of festivities. The program includes a parade, sports and other amusements, and in the evening a beautiful pageant and play, "The Canterbury Pilgrims," will be held in the open air at Stage Fork Park.

William W. French is president of the Gloucester Day committee, and Fred W. Tibbetts is secretary.

Among the fashionables who have already secured boxes for the affair are the Henry Clay Fricks, the John Hays Hammonds, the Misses Loring, Mrs. Edward G. McInnes, the Walter Denegrees, Charles G. Rice, the S. Reed Anthonys, the John Cabbots, Colonel Sidney Hedges, Congressman J. Sloate Fassett, Miss Guild, George F. Willett, Henry H. Proctor, Mrs. Levi Leiter, Mrs. William J. Boardman, General Louis H. Carpenter, Charles Scott, Dr. William Jarvie, E. C. Richardson, J. B. Lord, John E. Somes, Major Conant, the James F. Shaws and numerous others.

An engagement which has for a long time been rumored, and which has at last been publicly announced, is that of Miss Adele Moors of Boston and Cohasset to William Brown, also of Cohasset and Boston. Miss Moors, who is the belle of the South Shore Summer colony, is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Moors.

The engagement will be short as the marriage is to take place during the present month. It will occur at the Summer home of the Moors on Jerusalem road, but will be a quiet affair on account of the recent death of the bride's father.

Among the most popular of the younger married set are the Godfrey Robinsons, who find the Pemberton a pleasing change from Brookline at this season of the year. They are the centre of many delightful piazza parties. Mr. Robinson has thus far failed to find his equal at "travelling chess," of which game he is a past master.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter have just returned from a visit with Mrs. Leiter's parents in Washington, and are to sail this week for Europe, where they will spend the Summer. Mr. and Mrs. Leiter had arranged to spend the Summer on the North Shore, but the sudden death of their infant son led them to change their plans for a Summer of travel.

Players in the lawn tennis tournament at Newport are to be given a subscription ball in the Casino in August. This is to be a regular feature of the Newport season from now on. The committee of arrangements is to be composed of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Miss Maude Wetmore, Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll, Mrs. Barger Wallach and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish.

Cards are out thus early for the dinner which Mrs. George Gordon King is to give on July 30 in Newport. At this time of year it is quite necessary to have invitations out early to avoid conflicting dates of various social functions.

The Mount Vernon Congregational Church of Boston has called to its pulpit the Rev. James Austen Stevens, pastor of the United Congregational Church in New York.

Rev. and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes have arrived at their lake cottage at Stockbridge.

Miss Mary French is the guest this week of Miss Nora Iasigi at Clovercroft at Lenox.

Miss Amy Lowell of Brookline has been entertaining her nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Alfred Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt was Miss Mary C. Willis before her marriage a little more than a year ago. She is one of the most attractive young matrons that Brookline has entertained recently. Mr. Roosevelt is a second cousin of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt. He is a grandson of Mrs. James A. Roosevelt and a nephew of Mrs. E. Reeve Merritt.

Dr. and Mrs. Morton Prince will not sail for Europe on Tuesday by the Kronprinz from New York as they had planned.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Rhodes of Beacon street are travelling in Switzerland and have recently arrived by auto at Lucerne from Interlaken.

* * *

Miss Helen M. Winslow of Irving street, Cambridge, is entertaining her sister, Miss Harriet P. Winslow, who has recently returned from an extended stay in Jacksonville, Florida. Another sister, Mrs. Thomas L. Hazen of Shirley, will entertain her before she returns to her Southern home in August.

At a luncheon at the Thorndike on Saturday announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Mildred A. Atkinson, daughter of Mrs. M. J. Atkinson of Reading, to George H. Gage of Lawrence.

One of the mid-July marriages to take place this week is scheduled for 5 o'clock on Wednesday, when Miss Helen Tracy Newbold of Wellesley will become the bride of Dr. Paul A. Hudnut, also of Wellesley.

Professor and Mrs. Charles Eliot Norton are entertaining Arthur G. Sedgwick at their home in Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page have just returned to this country by the Celtic from Liverpool. Mrs. Page's daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Barnaby, returned with them. The Pages are to spend the remainder of the Summer at York Harbor. They visited the Burnabys in their English home and traveled with them on the continent. Mr. and Mrs. Page were among the distinguished Americans who were presented at the last Buckingham Palace court.

Mr. and Mrs. John Colby Abbott of Chestnut street are to remain in London until next month. They were among the American guests at the musicale given by Lady Lewis and John S. Sargent, the portrait painter, at the renowned Lewis mansion at Portland place. Among the other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Abbey and Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Ward.

BOY OF 17 TAKEN FOR THEFT OF AUTO

Lucien Messenger, aged seventeen, of No. 11 West Park street, Providence, was arrested by the metropolitan park police at Revere for the alleged larceny of an automobile. The machine, a 22-horse power runabout, was recognized on the boulevard by Patrolman Albert of the motorcycle squad from a description read last night at rollcall. The occupants, a man and woman, were escorted to the park station.

MINISTER LAUDS PRIEST FOR AID IN SALOON WAR

Rev. Joseph Tracey of St. Columbkille's Catholic Church, Brighton.

One of the warmest tributes ever paid by a Protestant clergyman to a Catholic priest is given by the Rev. William A. Knight of the Brighton Congregational Church to the Rev. Joseph Tracy of St. Columbkille's Church. In his Sunday morning sermon the Congregational pastor said in part:

"It is time to voice the gratitude of the community and of our church in particular to Fr. Tracy and his parishioners of St. Columbkille's Church for the whole-hearted way in which they joined us when this new liquor establishment was on the point of opening among a lot of small dwellings within 300 feet of our church. I shall never forget the magnanimous brotherliness of Fr. Tracy in our conferences, and I want to pledge him my love publicly.

"The secret of success in public welfare is mutual good will and co-operation among men of different creeds and race relations. Nothing is better for the city as a whole than this.

"I have never seen a finer example of the principles which alone can empower the 'Boston—1915' movement than men of Brighton recently gave in this issue. In the best of spirits men of very different relations got together."

A want advt. is often the road to fortune.

FEAR PEERS WILL DEFEAT THE BUDGET

By WILLIAM T. STEAD.

LONDON, July 12.—The political situation in England shows little signs of change. Discussions on the budget drag drearily along. Lloyd-George displays a conciliatory disposition, but it is evident that if the House can dispose of only two clauses in six weeks, the bill, containing seventy-eight clauses, will hardly be passed before Christmas.

If the bill is rushed through by drastic closure, the Lords will be encouraged to risk throwing out the budget on the ground that a revolutionary measure, striking so deep into the social and political conditions of English life, ought to be submitted to the constituencies before passing into a law. All now is in the dark, but some light may be thrown upon the obscurity by the four bye-elections which are now being fought in the north of England and Scotland. If the Ministers win them all it will give fresh heart to their supporters, but if they lose the Opposition will be encouraged to risk the constitutional conflict that would be precipitated by a rejection of the budget.

Beresford Has "Blown Up."

Lord Charles Beresford has shot his bolt and has missed the mark, as I always predicted he would. The Cabinet committee, after carefully hearing all he had to say, has decided he has not made out his case. His speech in the city puzzled and dismayed his own friends.

Posing as an advocate of naval supremacy, he attacked and ridiculed as excessive the moderate demand for two British keels to one of the next strongest European power, and put forward as his own program a shipbuilding scheme which would leave Germany stronger in Dreadnoughts in 1914 than England.

Henceforth you need not trouble about Charles Beresford.

Americans often ask whether Sir William Crookes retains his faith in spiritualism. The other day the great scientist made an emphatic declaration of his conviction.

Speaking of the incontrovertible evidence now admitted by the Psychical Research Society of the phenomena of Eusapia Paladino, Sir William Crookes said they were mere child's play to the proofs which convinced him of the reality of spiritistic phenomena. He mentioned as a specimen of the facts which compelled his belief that once at his own dinner table in his own house while he was sitting with Home, a goblet full of water and a tumbler glass were raised about twelve inches above the table and suspended there without visible means of support.

Spirit Faith Unshaken.

By the aid of the goblet and the tumbler he carried on a conversation by the ordinary code with the invisible intelligence which held these articles in suspense. The goblet was tapped by the glass thrice for yes, once for no and twice for doubtful. By this means an intelligent conversation was carried on under circumstances that precluded any fraud.

Sir William Crookes's faith has never since been shaken.

NEW BABY RECORD! 21 IN 35 YEARS

WILMINGTON, Del., July 12.—In his thirty-five years of married life William Toner, a blacksmith, of No. 1,207 Lincoln street, has been the father of twenty-one children. The latest addition to his family, twins, a boy and a girl, arrived Wednesday. Toner is fifty-seven years old and his present wife is fifty. He came here from Ireland when a youth, and married his first wife in 1874. She bore him twelve children, while his second wife, whom he married sixteen years ago, has been the mother of nine.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

STEEL STOCKS THE FEATURE

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Influenced by a higher range of quotations for American securities in London, stocks opened strong and fairly active in Wall street to-day. Gains of from one to two points were recorded during the early trading, with Reading, Baltimore & Ohio, Smelters and the Harriman issues most prominent.

Steel shares were fractionally higher at the opening, but, as the session progressed, their strength became one of the features of the market. On heavy purchases the common stock advanced to 69½, or within a fraction of the highest price it has sold at within its history. The preferred advanced in sympathy.

BIG CLOTHING STORE OPENS NEXT FRIDAY

There is a three-fold interest attaching to the coming of the Hilton Company, clothiers, to his city, the latter part of this week.

It means one more addition to the business life of Boston.

This concern carries a finished product which is figuring extensively in the discussion of tariff on wool and other raw materials in Washington just now.

The company's establishment will have, it is announced, the largest plate-glass front of any in the New England States.

The Hilton Company, which operates stores in New York, Philadelphia and Newark, N. J., boasts the honor of having had its product presented to the Ways and Means Committee in the House at Washington as the representative of clothing in the United States, and made the subject of an interesing debate in Congress on the wool schedule.

The Washington correspondent of a Philadelphia paper described the incident as follows:

"America can and does manufacture high grade all-wool clothing for men, fashionably cut and well tailored, made in well lighted and commodious factories by well-paid working men and sold in the most exclusive retail section of the large cities for $12.50 a suit.

"This assertion was made by Theodore Justice, the well-known Philadelphia dealer in high-grade wool, in his argument before the House Ways and Means Committee for the retention of the existing tariff schedules on wool. It was proved when Mr. Justice called attention to the suit he wore as one for which he had paid $12.50.

"This assertion was doubted, a Democratic member of the committee declaring it was a $60 suit. The merchant, to prove the genuineness of the transaction, offered to produce 100 of the same kind of suits for $12.50 to be put up by any doubter.

"The store where Mr. Justice bought the suit is that of the Hilton Clothing Company."

The Hilton Company's new Boston store will be located in the Blake building at the corner of Washington street and Temple place. It is to be opened next Friday.

TARPON IN PERIL FROM BIG WHALE

PROVINCETOWN, July 12.—The submarine boat Tarpon, which is here with the battleship squadron, narrowly escaped being run down and sunk by a whale off Long Point. The vessel was submerged at the time and undergoing an engine test.

The big whale swept past the submarine within a fathom's length, setting her to rolling wildly. Had the whale hit the Tarpon a sufficiently hard blow the little vessel might have been destroyed through the tipping over of the sulphuric acid jars, it is asserted.

MOTHER, DAUGHTER DIVORCED SAME DAY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 12.—The one topic of conversation here is the unusual double divorce proceedings of Mrs. Susanne G. Mackey-Sayles and her daughter, Mrs. Reynolds, which were dissolved the same day in the same court.

Just prior to the granting of the mother's divorce by Judge Sterns, Mrs. Reynolds appeared as a petitioner and secured a divorce from her husband, a hotel manager.

AUTO FINES AT DEDHAM.

Albert B. Stewart and Paul Platt of Boston and George B. Kirby of Willimantic, Ct., were fined $15 each in the Dedham District Court to-day for running automobiles beyond the speed limit in that town. Charles Quinn of Newton was fined $10 for operating an auto in Wellesley without lighted lamps.

NORTH BUTTE STRONG AGAIN

STATE STREET, July 12.—North Butte rose from 47½ to 50 this forenoon, almost in as quick a time as the three-point drop was accomplished Saturday, which was in the last fifteen minutes of trading. The break then was a bear drive and the recovery to-day was through their covering movement. Apparently they decided to gather in the stock which would materially be scared out this morning through Saturday's bad break.

There was little life to the mining list outside North Butte, yet prices were firm in the main. There was considerable arbitrage business in early dealings in Amalgamated and U. S. Steel former stiffened to 81⅝ and the latter to 69⅜. New York wired over that Washington has been a big buyer of Steel common in that market.

Copper Range was firm at 80½ and U. S. Smelting at 48⅞. The list otherwise showed immaterial changes.

Trading on the curb centred in Southern Development and the swing in that specialty was pretty sharp and entirely speculative. Opening at 26, it broke to 18 cents, rose to 25 and went back close to 20 cents again. Geyser showed a better tone. Although the curb boys were beaten in their ball game with New York Saturday they are satisfied with their trip.

LUMBERMAN IS OWN DETECTIVE

Acting as his own detective, Grant Bent, a New Hampshire lumberman, after three hours of patient sleuthing through the South End, finally secured the arrest of William Cummings of North Adams on the charge of having robbed him in a doorway near the corner of Washington and Eliot streets of over $200 in cash.

Bent, who is as strong as a giant, is alleged to have made the acquaintance of three men in the South End and agreed to accompany them for a walk. In a convenient doorway he found himself throttled by two of them while a third took from his vest pocket a roll of bills.

SAYS IT'S USELESS TO SIGNAL MARS

That it is useless to try and signal Mars, because it is not even known taht the planet is inhabited, is the opinion of many leading members of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America.

"We do not know that Mars is inhabited," said Professor E. C. Pickering of Harvard, "and for that reason it would be useless for us to try to signal to the planet."

DOUBT ATROPINE CURES DIABETES

Boston doctors interviewed are inclined to doubt a report from New York that Dr. J. Rudisch of the Mt. Sinai Hospital had discovered a sure cure for diabetes. The New York doctor claims that after two and a half years experimenting with atropine he had discovered a cure for the disease. In one case as much as three grains daily was given over a short period with no greater effect than a characteristic dryness of the throat.

100 IN FIRE TRAP.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Nine persons, most of them women, were saved from death today during an incendiary fire in the five-story tenement house at No. 108 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street. More than 100 tenants were imprisoned by the flames, which were started by a firebug on the third and fifth floors, but all were finally taken to safety by the firemen and police.

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, July 12.—Notwithstanding that stocks sold off on the publication of the recent government crop report, it will be strange if the figures set forth in that document do not aid materially in the ultimate advancement of prices. The 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn predicted will not only establish a record in quantity, but are likely also to establish a record in price. There is a demand for every bushel in sight, and at the prices expected the harvest will probably return more than $2,000,000,000 to the farmers.

Wall Street is congratulating itself that the end of the tariff legislation is in sight. It is believed that the bill will be in the hands of the President before the end of the month. Then, it is hoped, the commercial world may immediately increase its commitments.

Conditions at present prevailing in the securities market appear to be unusually puzzling to the so-called "readers." Whether the big interests are willing to unload, provided purchasers can be found at the present rates, or whether they are holding stocks for further advances, is the problem. Those who look for a reaction point to the recent liquidation by banks and declare that the present week will witness a further reduction of investment holdings in those circles.

$ $ $

On the other hand, believers in a continued advance point out that J. P. Morgan is expected home within the next week, and that his return invariably has been the signal for the start of a big bull market. It is also noted that James Stillman, William Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, Daniel Reid, Judge Moore and other noted financiers have returned from their vacations. Under these circumstances the bull element looks for a steady upward movement during the next two or three weeks, or while the general public is absent on its vacation, and at the expiration of that period an announcement of several important movements which it is known are impending.

$ $ $

Another argument in support of the prediction of higher prices is found in the anxiety displayed by certain interests to create a market in France for American securities. The successful conduct of a bull movement here, such as contemplated, will require, it is said, a larger field of operations than that embraced in the home market. For that reason, it is declared, the eyes of the leaders of finance here have been fixed on the "woolen stockings," as the famous De Lesseps called them, of the thifty French peasant. According to present estimates, those "stockings" are capable of absorbing more than a billion dollars of American wares in the shape of stocks and bonds.

$ $ $

Mention of a French market for American securities naturally recalls the case of Steel common. Whether or not Morgan succeeds in listing this security on the Paris Bourse, speculation in the stock in this country is not likely to be materially affected. By the most conservative individuals it is estimated that at the moment there is at least fifty dollars of value behind each share of this security, which at the time of the formation of the trust was regarded as practically worthless. It is not unreasonable to suppose, therefore, say the believers in steel, that a management which has accomplished this remarkable transformation in less than ten years can add still more to the value of its property within the next decade.

$ $ $

America, as represented by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., has forced an open door in Chinese finances, according to the latest advices from London. This means that these firms will participate in the loan for the building of the Hankow-Canton Railroad. The stroke is as important diplomatically as financially. It validates the agreement of 1904; it gives the United States a potential commercial standing in China; it assures bond offerings of a very high grade to American investors, and, lastly, it promises an excellent profit for the two houses mentioned.

$ $ $

There is considerable adverse comment to be heard around the street on the fact that the tendency of railroad earnings during June has been to fall short of the promise of still larger increases as seemed to have been indicated by the improvement shown up to the middle of May. This downward movement has been the usual experience of railroads during June as can be noted if comparisons are made. Various tests of combinations of different groups of railroads only prove more conclusively the theory that during certain periods of the year increases or decreases will recur. It will be found that gross increases from July each month up to the high in October, when the crops are moving, then declines during the Winter months to the low in February. March always reports a gain over February from which time the tendency is to fall off in April, increase in May and again declined in June.

$ $ $

Buying better than any seen in Western Maryland for several days past can be traced in this issue, and it is said that while the assessment will be large, the stockholders will have little ground for complaint, as they will be given a valuable preferred stock in return for the assessment. It is contended that while the bonded indebtedness of the road appears to be large, it is really not unduly heavy when consideration is taken of the valuable coal properties which go with the railroad.

HARRIMAN BUILDS NEW FREIGHT SHIPS

NEW YORK, July 12.—The announcement from Newport News, Va., that the building of steamships there is to start again sheds light upon E. H. Harriman's plans.

It is the Ocean Steamship Company, better known as the Savannah line, for which the Newport News Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company is constructing two large coasting vessels and cargo carriers to cost upward of $1,000,000. The new ships are to run between New York and Savannah.

RESCUE STARVING SAILORS AT SEA

NEW YORK, July 12.—The agents of the Veloce line, received a wireless message to-day from Captain Schaiffino of the America, saying that 150 miles out from Sandy Hook he picked up the captain and crew of the British schooner Druide, bound from the Barbadoes to Paxbabaic, Quebec. They were in open boats and had been adrift for several days, and nearly starved.

3 HURLED OUT AS AUTO TURNS TURTLE

A touring car bearing a Rhode Island number and driven by a man who gave his name as Florence W. Coudry of Newport, skidded over the oiled pavement of Blue Hill avenue and collided with a lamp post and turned turtle before the driver could leap from his seat. Mrs. Coudrey and their eleven-year-old son Harold were pitched from their seats by the impact, but both were uninjured.

The money will be paid such members for twelve weeks in any one year. Ten new members were admitted to membership last week, and the following new officers elected: President Curtin, chairman of the board of trustees; Michael J. Sheehan, treasurer, and David B. Proctor, secretary. Business Agent John J. Fenton and Secretary Michael J. Sheehan were elected as delegates to the special convention of the State Branch, called for August 11 to act on the veto of the eight-hour bill by Governor Draper.

BOLIVIA-ARGENTINE ROW GROWS SERIOUS

BUENOS AYRES, July 12.—The Argentine government is in direct communication with Bolivia through Senor Fonseca, Argentine minister at Lapaz, who has presented to the Bolivian government a demand for an explanation for the attitude of the Bolivian minister here as well as for the recent attacks upon the Argentine legation at Lapaz. Senor Fonseca has informed the Bolivian government that he will withdraw if the present situation is not improved. The Argentine minister of foreign affairs received a despatch from Senor Fonseca announcing the fifth hostile demonstration against Argentina, in spite of the presence of Bolivian troops at the legation. The Argentine legation is now guarded by 800 soldiers.

30 CARS OFF IN GLIDDEN AUTO TOURS

By J. C. KERRISON.

DETROIT, Mich., July 12.—The Glidden tour or what has already been termed the "Gridiron contest" was inaugurated in this city early this morning when the first of thirty competing cars was sent away, followed at one minute intervals by the remainder of the contending and some ten non-contesting cars, the latter including the official and press cars.

This number shows quite a falling off in the list of entrants for the competitions, the cadidates for the Glidden trophy numbering thirteen cars, whereas a year ago there were thirty-two entrants. In the Hower trophy there are fourteen entrants, the same as a year ago.

In the added class, that for the Detroit trophy, there are but three cars, but they are of such a character as will insure close and interesting competition.

In the list the most powerful car is the Thomas six cylinder, rated at seventy horsepower, and the smallest powered is the little Brush, rated at six horse.

The great majority of the cars are equipped with both systems of ignition, and all but five are shaft driven, these being the double chain drive Thomas, which by the way was the only chain driven machine in the run last year, two Brush runabouts, the McIntire and the Mason.

The shortest distance to be covered in any one day is the 142½ miles between Detroit and Kalamazoo. Many of the cars are carrying block and tackle, and likewise shovels, the latter for use in case of trouble with the prairies that lie between Fort Dodge and Denver.

Just before starting out, Chairman Hower made a little sporty proposition with Teddy Day, to the effect that in his opinion there would not be a clean score car in any of the classes by the time Kansas City is reached.

A slight shower fell last night, and at 4 o'clock this morning, when the two E. M. F. confetti cars left Detroit to lay the trail, the sky was overcast, and things looked decidedly dubious when four hours later Webb Jay, in the Premier, threw in the clutch and started off the A. A. A. tour of 1909.

The three days spent in this city have been most pleasant ones for the tourists. The citizens have done everything in their power to make the stop pleasant, indeed, the greatest treat having been reserved for yesterday, when a trip up the Detroit River was enjoyed, the Maxwell Band proving a most pleasing addition.

Plans for Lowell Race.

During the trip the board got together with John Heints of the Lowell club and settled the details of the Lowell contest which will be the one big race of the year.

President Heintz is already assured of the entry of Joe Matson and his Chalmers, winner of the Indiana race; Chevrolet and his Buick, winner of the Cobe; Robertson, in the Herreshoff; Frank Kulig, in his new Ford racer, in addition to those already announced, making a list of something like twenty-five cars to date.

Last evening the contestants and observers met the officials of the run, received their instructions, and informed them that the rules already promulgated would remain in force without one iota of a change throughout the tour.

The scene at the start was most exciting, the square being thronged with thousands who cheered each car as it got away while military salutes were tendered each departing guest, and the band played.

SHORE LEAVE IS DENIED JACKIES

Eighteen days of cruising, with not a day's shore leave for any of the crew, and their Fourth of July banquet and celebration denied them because Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Norton was having his vacation, was the tale told by the crew of the revenue cutter Androscoggin, in port here.

For the past eighteen days the assistant secretary has been aboard the Androscoggin, commanded by Lieutenant H. H. Wolf, and has been cruising along the northern shores of New England. During that time the crew were put through drill after drill and denied the shore leave that they have been accustomed to having almost daily.

CITY TOO POOR FOR FLOATING HOSPITAL

The move for a city floating hospital has been turned down by the City Hospital trustees. In a communication to Councilman Coleman E. Kelley to-day the trustees stated that they had considered the matter for the thir dtime at their last meeting. The expense of maintaining a hospital of this kind was computed to be over $40,000 annually. The trustees say that in the present state of finances of the city it would be out of reason to ask for an appropriation of this amount.

GETS FORTUNE IN AMBERGRIS

The schooner Hockomock, bringing swordfish, landed a prize catch at T wharf to-day in the shape of a fifty-pound piece of what is believed to be ambergris, worth about $20,000. There are more whales along the Atlantic coast this season than for fifty years, and every fisherman is on the lookout for ambergris. This is the first piece found this season. Ten mackerel fishermen to-day landed 103,000 fresh mackerel and 200 barrels salted, the fresh ones bringing 15½ cents on the wharf.

MRS. GOELET WALKS FIVE MILES EVERY DAY ON SHIPBOARD

MRS R.GOELET.

Mrs. Robert Goelet.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Mrs. Robert Goelet, who arrived by the Hamburg-American liner Cincinnati, introduced to her fellow passengers a form of recreation that they were able to imitate—that is the frau and fraulein section—for only a few days. Mrs. Goelet is a believer in walking and she did regularly every morning one mile around the promenade deck at a pace that only a vigorous woman will undertake. In the afternoon she did with the same regularity, rain or shine, four miles. On the third day out a dozen or more ladies who had been emulous of Mrs. Goelet found the pace too swift and for the rest of the trip she did her morning and afternoon walk practically alone.

HAINS MOVES TO FREE SON

NEW YORK, July 12.—General Peter C. Hains, the father of Captain Peter C. Hains, the slayer of William E. Annis, who is serving a term in Sing Sing, reached New York to-day from Cape May, where he left his wife and the three little children of the captain. He will be in conference either to-night or Monday with John F. McIntyre, who was chief of counsel for the Hains brothers in their trials, and decisions as to the next move in the case of the captain will be reached before many days.

"It may be that we will ask a pardon or an examination into the nervous condition of my son or for a new trial," said the general. "Since the last trial I have been exerting myself to restore my wife's health, as well as to get some rest which I very much needed."

Asked about the captain's condition, he said: "I believe that he will not live long. It is a wonder to me that some of the reform associations have not exposed conditions at Sing Sing."

4 BIG SHOWS AT NANTASKET

To-day and Friday are free ticket days at Nantasket Beach, where at four of the great beach attractions the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has arranged half rates two days a week for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN Outing Club.

The free tickets published in yesterday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN were four in number. One was for the Old Mill, where a ticket and five cents gives a ten-cent ride through dark tunnels and lighted grottos. Another free ticket presented with five cents yields a ten-cent admission to the Lyric Theatre, a first-class amusement house of moving pictures and vaudeville, with entertainment more than an hour long.

The third free ticket is for Grant's roller coaster, a long high ride with a double lift and splendid drops, all cars being fitted with new and masterful safety appliances. It is a ten-cent ride, but a ticket and five cents buys it on Monday and Friday, day or evenings.

The fourth coupon is for Grant's flying horses, where a ticket and a nickel yield two rides. One may ride twice or two may ride once, it makes no difference, for here, as elsewhere, the free ticket is just like real money. Watch the BOSTON AMERICAN for further announcements and get the SUNDAY AMERICAN each week for the free tickets.

RIOTS MARK ORANGE DAY

BELFAST, July 12.—Fifty thousand Orangemen paraded the streets to-day upon the occasion of the annual July 12 Orange celebration. It was anticipated that there would be trouble, so soldiers were held in readiness in addition to the police to quell disturbances. There was a Nationalist outbreak in the morning, when stones and clubs were thrown, but no one was seriously hurt.

Later the Nationalists stoned the police, who retreated until they were reinforced, and then charged into the mob, dispersing them. In the meantime rioters wrecked several stores. They smashed windows and scattered the merchandise into the street.

FULLER PROMISES SURPRISE DANCES

La Loie Fuller, who is in Paris rehearsing her "Muses" is to offer many surprises at the Boston Opera House when she appears here in December. For instance, one may look for her dance of Salome, or, as she herself expresses it, the tragedy of Salome, by the Viscount Robert D'Humieres, with music by Florant Schmidt. It is a pantomime in one act and many tableaux. She will in all probability do the "Stabat Mater," Beethoven's sonatas, Liszt's "St. Francis" and many other subjects, in all of which she will be assisted by her "Muses," fifty or more girls, and by an orchestra.

LOST WOMAN FOUND DEAD AND ROBBED

RICHMOND, Me., July 12.—The people of this town are much excited over the finding of the body of Mrs. Abbie Cromwell, in a badly decomposed condition, in the woods about four miles from here. Mrs. Cromwell was last seen alive on June 25, when she left the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sidney Barter, to go to the home of her son Richard, on the Wiscasset road.

At the time she had over $250 in money with her. When the body was found the money was missing and the opinion is that she was overtaken by tramps, who learned that she had money with her, and killed her in order to obtain it.

HIPLESS GOWN FAD CAUSES ODD DIVORCE

BERLIN, July 12.—The present unholy fashions in women's attire denounced by the Vatican organ, the Osservatore Romano, are responsible for a remarkable divorce just granted by the courts of Silesia. On the representation of the husband that his wife had become intolerably thin in order to accommodate her figure to modish dress, a decree of divorce has been awarded by a Silesian judge.

The petitioner declared that when he married her his wife was naturally of a good figure, but this year she suddenly decided that she must be thinner to keep pace with the fashions. She began, therefore, a strenuous cure which reduced her by thirty-one pounds in three months. She rode horseback, played tennis, took daily walks and ate like a bird. Her habitual rosy complexion gradually changed to a chronic paleness under this regimen. She dwindled away until her weight, though she was 5 feet 10 inches in height, was only 133 pounds.

She attained her ambition, however, and could wear a really fashionable gown. When the Judge forbade his wife to continue fading away, she defied him.

In the divorce proceedings the Judge contended that his wife had deceived her husband because he had bargained to marry a lady of natural ample proportions. Had she been ill it would have been his duty to watch her grow thin uncomplainingly, but as she sacrificed herself merely in response to the dictates of a mad fashion he claimed the right to be rid of her.

PLAIN DIET FOR "BABY" BROWN

LONDON, July 12.—John Nicholas Brown, the richest boy in the world, is living the simple life in London, though occupying a magnificent suite in the exclusive Berkeley Hotel and constantly watched by his physician.

His mode of life is extremely modest, compared with some less rich youngsters in the oLndon hotels. His food is always sterilized and his diet simple. While exercising every possible care, his mother rigorously refrains from pampering her multi-millionaire son.

Apparently the mother doesn't entertain any fears of her son being kidnapped in London, as accompanied only by his nurse, he spends most of the time in St. James Park, which is across the street from the Berkeley. He is obliged during the time he spends indoors to worry along with only a few trunkfuls of toys and a few selected books.

MAN IS LOCKED IN BY MOTHER

According to John Hudson Merrill of No. 92A Pinckney street, an attorney-at-law, he would not now be under arrest in New York if his mother hadn't locked him up in his room.

Merrill is charged with larceny of a suit of clothes and a Panama hat worth $75 from his friend, Frank G. Macomber, Jr., of New York.

When Merrill went into voluntary bankruptcy last May to the tune of over $4,000, with no assets, he scheduled among other items one of $85 owed for hats, shoes and furnishings. Merrill's debts were mainly for flowers, candy, theatre tickets, taxicabs, jewelry and hotel expenses.

Merrill was arrested at his home Saturday night at the request of the New York police. He tried to explain that he had merely borrowed the suit and hat from Mr. Macomber in New York, worn them on to Boston, and meant to wear them right back and hang them up in Mr. Macomber's clothes-press. But, unfortunately, Merrill's mother, as he said, locked him up in his room the minute he arrived. So, of course, he couldn't get out to return Macomber's clothes.

SAVES BOSTON MAN IN LAUNCH

A private message was received here to-day, telling of the narrow escape from drowning at Kennebunkport, Me., of Frank E. Draper, an optician at No. 101 Tremont street, whose home is in Newton. Mr. Draper was rescued by William Roach, who swam half a mile to his aid and then started to return with Draper on his back.

Mr. Draper is cruising in a thirty-five-foot dory launch and left here late at night, intending after making a couple of stops in the harbor to start out for Boston. Off Prout's Neck the motor became disabled and while Mr. Draper was trying to get it into action again the outgoing tide carried the boat on the rocks. Draper cannot swim. Realizing his peril, he shouted for help.

Roach, who is employed at a beach hotel, heard the cries and swam out. Seeing that the motor boat was useless, Roach told Draper how to hang on, and then started to swim back to shore. They got about half way when a rescue party in a boat reached them. Roach is a small man and was nearly exhausted.

NEW MILLION FOR ROYALTY'S BRIDE

LONDON, July 12.—From a well informed source it was learned to-day that the fortune which Miss Anita Stewart, the American heiress, will bring to Dom Miguel of Braganza, son of the Portuguese Pretender, on her marriage will amount to $2,000,000. Of this sum $1,000,000 was given to Miss Stewart by James Henry Smith at the time of his marriage to her mother, Mrs. Rhinelander Stewart, as she then was. The other $1,000,000 will be given as a dowry by her mother.

JUSTICE MOODY ILL.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Justice William H. Moody of the United States Supreme Court is reported ill with rheumatism. He was at Hot Springs, Va., for the baths, but a report from that place stated that he left some days ago.

NOTED VIOLINIST, WHOSE DIVORCED WIFE WEDS AGAIN

Arthur Hartmann.

WOMAN AUTO SPEEDER FINED

The second woman auto speeder fined in the Chelsea Police Court this season appeared before Judge Cutler to-day and paid $10 for going too fast on the Revere Beach Boulevard. She was Miss Eva Hortense Cressey of Gloucester. In the case of Benjamin F. Young of Boston a driver, continuance was granted to July 26. The defendant said that on the night of his speeding he was taking Dr. William Burdick, a Harvard physician, to Marblehead to operate on a Mrs. Adams, who was in a serious condition.

Others who paid fines of $10 each were: Maxwell H. Robinson, Fred C. Bacon, Fred S. Elliott of Boston, Harry N. Naughn of Melrose, Ralph Hosmer of Somerville, Stewart J. Coughlin and Joseph H. Simon of Salem, Thomas Devine and Fred Wilson of Beverly, Stanley O. Holden of Lynn and Fred H. Holyoke and Joseph Powers of Bangor, Me.

JOHN D. TELLS HOW TO REST

CLEVELAND, July 12.—John D. Rockefeller has come out with advice to vacationists.

This is what the oil man has to say to the people seeking a two weeks' summer rest:

"The vacation season should be spent by living simply, by spending more time out of doors. Nearly everyone would be in better health if he were more out of doors and live longer if they followed my example.

"I never think about the termination of life. I am too busy trying to be useful while I live.

"Golf is a game you have to learn again every time you play.

"Dr. Biggar tells me I am going to live to be ninety-five years old, possible 100. Perhaps I shall, for Dr. Biggar is usually right.' Anyway, he says I am far too healthy for the good of his exchequer.

"People worry too much. Some complain of their troubles and some even of the sunshine that comes into their lives. Everybody should try to be happy under all the changing conditions of life."

SHOE MEN SEE TARIFF CHANGE

President Charles C. Hoyt of the New England Shoe & Leather Association has returned from Washington and says that after a committee interview with President Taft, he is encouraged to believe that some favorable change will be made in the new tariff regarding leather. Charles H. Jones, who was spokesman for the delegation in the meeting with the President, will remain in Washington. Other members of the delegation who have returned are George E. Keith of Brockton, L. A. Crossett of Arlington and Henry H. Proctor.

In speaking of the committee's visit, President Hoyt said to-day: "Our interview with President Taft was a very satisfactory one. The President showed the greatest knowledge of the subject we had come to discuss with him, and was manifestly interested in what he had to say. The principal statement was made by Mr. Jones, although each other member of the committee spoke briefly."

QUINCY GIRL IS NAVAL BRIDE TO-DAY

Miss Sadie F. Johnson of Quincy became the bride of Warrant Officer James MacDonough, U. S. N., to-day, at the Summer home of the bride's parents at Post Island, on the South Shore.

The marriage was the culmination of a romance of long standing, that had its inception during a merry little tea party aboard the New Jersey just before her sailing with the great Atlantic fleet for the trip around the world.

Miss Johnson and Officer MacDonough met that evening, and when the fleet sailed away Mr. MacDonough's heart remained behind with the Quincy girl.

MRS. ROOSEVELT AND CHILDREN AT GENOA

GENOA, July 12.—After a stormy passage the steamer Cretic, with Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and her three children aboard, arrived here from Naples. Mrs. Roosevelt and the members of her family came ashore and proceeded to the Hotel Brittany. They were met by the American consul.

HARTMANN'S FORMER WIFE BERLIN BRIDE

Romance No. 9, counting broken engagements and weddings, is the latest in the stormy and romantic life of Mrs. Lutie Murray Swift Hartmann, the daughter of a Chicago boarding house keeper whose last husband was Arthur Hartmann, the Hungarian violinist and who is now the wife by a Berlin wedding of Hans Kenderman, another of the artistic set in musical circles.

Scores of Boston people who know Hartmann and who have become well versed in the marital affairs of the now Mrs. Kenderman were a bit surprised to-day to learn of the wedding in Germany, for she was granted a divorce from Hartmann principally because his artistic temperament did not meet the standard she required in a husband.

Hartmann a short time after he was divorced expressed himself regarding American women and music by asking, "Why are they not content to absorb art entirely for their own refinement and culture?"

Mrs. Kenderman is a handsome woman, and she was a dashing divorcee when Hartmann met her in 1903. In 1894 Chicago society in particular was stirred by the announcement that Herbert Swift, son of the millionaire packer, was to marry Lutie Murray, whose parents kept a boarding house. This astonishment had hardly become absorbed when another one came with the news that the engagement with Bertie Swift had been broken. Then came another bolt when it was made known that Miss Murray was to marry Charles H. Swift, a brother of Bertie. This she did, and in 1903 she brought charges of cruelty against him and was given a divorce with $100 a week alimony for life.

This divorce was on April 5, 1903, and on August 26 of the same year she became the wife of Arthur Hartmann, the Boston man, famed in leading musical circles as a violinist. They went to Berlin to live, and after a short time came reports of a separation, then a reconciliation, and finally a divorce action on her part. She won this, and Boston thought little more of the marital affairs of the pair, except now and then as Mr. Hartmann visited this country and was heard by fashionable audiences in Jordan Hall or at private musicales.

BISHOP TALBOT, WHO EXTENDS WELCOME TO EPISCOPALIANS

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR FIRST ZIONIST

In memory of Dr. Theodore Herzle, the founder of the Zionist movement, who died five years ago, Boston Zionists joined with Zionists the world over in holding services. The services at the Adath Jeshrun Synagogue, on Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, were largely attended. Rabbi M. M. Eichler paid a glowing tribute to the dead leader. He declared that if Zionism tended in the slightest to make a bad America he would not support it for one second. "We love America," he said, "and we intend to stay here."

BIG EPISCOPAL CONFERENCE IS OPENED TODAY

The opening address at the Summer conference of the Episcopal Church of America was made to-day at St. Paul's Church, Tremont street, by Bishop Ethelbert Talbot, D. D., of Bethlehem, Pa.

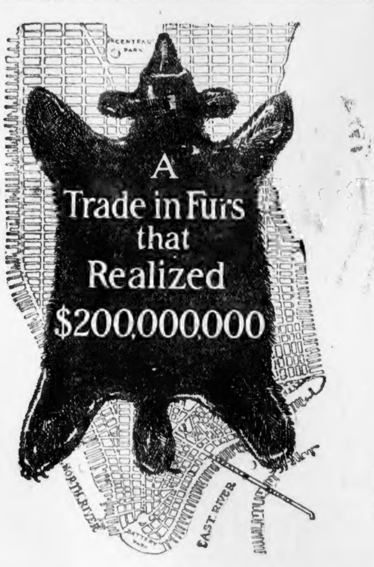
He urged upon his hearers the true definition of Christianity, not social or intellectual, but springing from the heart. Long before the Bible was ever in its present shape, he said, men believed in Christianity, because it appealed to their emotions, though back of it all was the personality of Christ. He illustrated the power of personality in human life from literature and history, and showed how it had regulated all the great movements in civilization.

The noon speaker to-morrow at St. Paul's will be the president of the Seabury society, Eugene M. Camp of New York. These conferences are held under the auspices of this society. To-night Bishop Talbot will welcome the delegates at the reception to be given in the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, from 5 to 7. Mr. Camp, who is the prime mover in these conferences, was formerly a telegraph operator, when the Hon. Sharles Emory Smith, formely Minister to Russia, took an interest in him and assigned him a place on the press, when editor of the Philadelphia Press.

"We have come here," said Mr. Camp to the BOSTON AMERICAN," with this society because we want to know how God's cause gets along in Boston. What did it do last year, and what ought it to do next year? We have fifty bankers, lawyers and other prominent men interested in the work of the church of New York, and we believe there is more work to be done by representative men right here in Boston. When we want men to get interested in missionary work, we bring the men to missions to-day—not the old way of bringing missions to men. There's a vast difference and we intend to emphasize this thought in these conferences."

FIRE SWEEPS PLANT.

LOWELL, July 12.—The plant of the F. C. Woodbury Shoe Company at Salem Depot, N. H., was destroyed by fire with a loss of approximately $25,000.



¶ The first John Jacob Astor, when New York agent for his brother's musical instrument business in London, was one day offered some skins in exchange for a horn.

¶ He took them and became a great fur trader. He took the money thus acquired and bought land and more land in and about old New York. To-day the Astor estate is estimated at $200,000,000.

¶ It's a "clean" fortune, as fortunes go, and the roots of it strike back into the dramatic, picturesque associations of our early history.

RED SOX AFTER REVENGE FOR TWO DEFEATS

RAY COLLINS HERE TO JOIN THE RED SOX

A husky looking young athlete walked into the American baseball headquarters this morning looking for President John I. Taylor. He looked pretty good to Secretary Eddie Riley, who asked him what he wanted.

"Why, I'm Ray Collins of Vermont University, and I'm here to report to the Red Sox, as Mr. Taylor has my name to a contract. I'm through college now and ready for work."

Collins is the young college pitcher who has been beating all the big varsity teams twirling for Vermont, and has been the terror of the opposing collegians. President Taylor saw that there was good box timber in the lad and signed him up as soon as he finished his academic course.

He is a fine looking chap, standing six feet one inch, weighing 180 pounds, and is 22 years old. He is a Vermonter born and bred, and a bunch of sinew from top to toe.

He has been pitching for his college team for several years. During the past season he beat Brown 2—0, Amherst 2—1, Dartmouth 3—2, Holy Cross 5—3, Columbia 4—1, and in the Penn State game had nineteen strikeouts. Vermont did not play Harvard this year, but last season Collins beat the Crimson.

President Taylor was not in his office when Collins put in appearance, but the ball player said he would stick around till he arranged with the magnate whether he would join the team in the West or remain here taking light practice till the team returned.

PLAYERS LOSE HAIR WITH HOLIDAY GAME

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., July 12.—When the players of the Central baseball team of this place trotted out on the field Saturday afternoon a roar of laughter went up from the stands. Every player had his head shaved close. Inquiry brought out the fact that the players were paying a bet made with their manager, Harry Bashman.

He told them before the games of July 5 that it was up to them to carry off the victory, and they in the pride of a series of successes agreed to shave their heads if they did not do it. He was to mar his beauty similarly if they won.

Luck was against the ball tossers, however, and the local barbers made money out of them.

BROOKLYN NEEDS NEW MANAGER

By ALLEN SANGREE.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The Brooklyn Baseball Club needs to get a hustle on. Instead of 10,000 at last Saturday's double-header, there should have been double that number. When a double header on a July Saturday falls down to such an extent, you may be sure of something rotten in Denmark.

Apparently the blame is upon Manager Harry Lumley. So far as an outsider can judge this is the case, but Lumley may know differently. Lumley does not get out on the coaching line. He does not throw any ginger in his club, and when a manager should be on hand to dispute the empire's decision, such as Klem made the other day on that blocked ball, this manager must be pulled off the bench by one of his players and tugged into the argument. Lumley, it would seem, either has no confidence in himself or else he does not care. If his indifference is not due to personal inability but to some strained relations with the owner, then its up to Mr. Ebbets.

Baseball in these days is like any other industry. It requires a single head that is a directing agent. No theatre or manufactory will thrive without a man at the helm who makes things hum. Doubtless the Brooklyn club is making a nice income, and perhaps the owners are satisfied with that. But the owner of a National League ball club has a duty to the public. The Dodgers, though not of such interest to Greater New York as the Giants, are just as important to their league. If the American League had a club in Brooklyn you would see some activity at Washington Park. Without competition the management is contented to go along in a rut and toss away games with the lightest abandon.

You can easily see where Brooklyn lacks in contrasting their team with the Giants. Lose or win, McGraw is out there all the time, the operating head of an efficient machine. He gets the most there is out of his men. If he does not happen to have the material this season to win the pennant, he proves to his patrons, at least, that he is doing his best, which cannot be said of Lumley.

The Brooklyn manager is a fine fellow personally and a skilled ball player. But why isn't he out there like Clarke, Chance, Griffith, McGraw and Jennings? These men are older than Lumley and not so spry as they used to be. Nevertheless, every game finds them going a mile a minute, actively participating on the coaching line or in actual play. These kind of fellows win pennants.

Baseball News and Notes

Ban Johnson says that the Eastern clubs of the American League will play Sunday games in a few years.

* * *

Joe Cantillon has let Tom Hughes, Tannehill and Nick Altrock go. Pretty soon there'll be nothing left down in Washington but the franchise and Joe.

* * *

Chadbourne of the Indianapolis club is credited with the longest "home run" of the season. He jumped his team and beat it to his home in New England.

* * *

"Ty" Cobb will probably equal his record of stolen bases of last year within another week. During the season of 1908 he pilfered 39 sacks and to date he has stolen 35. There is no one in the National League who is near his equal, and in his own league "Donie" Bush, with 20 to his credit, is his nearest competitor.

* * *

* * *

Oh, yes, they do come back.

Jimmy Barret, ex-Detroit, Boston, etc., outfielder, who was declared dead a long time ago as the result of bum stilts, has returned to the game, playing left field for Milwaukee, and is simply burning up the ground.

* * *

The latest puzzle in the Eastern League: Who will finally land the manager's job in Jersey City? It looks like a case of "On ag'in, off ag'in, gone ag'in, Ryan," just now.

* * *

The Browns are a big disappointment this year. In the Spring they were conceded to have an even chance with the Naps and the Tigers, but they have failed to live up to expectations. The Athletics are the surprise of the American League.

* * *

There is something wrong with Buffalo, and the men hardly know where they are at. Different players play different positions almost every day, and they have been forced to play a semi-pro in right field, owing to a salary dispute with Orth Collins. Collins, who came from Terre Haute, was a big help to the Bisons, and if no agreement with him can be reached it means a big loss to the Herd.

* * *

Rucker, Bell and Wilhelm are the only consistent pitchers on the Brooklyn staff. Pastorious, though he has twirled some fine games, has been more or less of a disappointment this year. The man with the medicinal name used to be able to beat the Giants, but has failed to do so this season.

* * *

The college player is becoming a big factor in professional base ball every year. Fifteen years ago this type of player was looked upon as something unusual, but now the minor and big leagues are flooded with the learned ball tossers.

A son of George Tebeau was pinched recently for riding in his auto with the throttle wide open. When he told the court that his father owned the Kansas City baseball team he was fined $95.

* * *

B. G. Byers, a former Texas League umpire, was signed for the Central Association by President Justice of Keokuk. Umpire E. Holderby, who has been on the Central staff six weeks, was released.

* * *

It is announced that the Cleveland club has purchased Koestner, a big right hand pitcher of the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast League.

* * *

One of the oddest deals in the American Association has just come to light. Oscar Graham last season was a pitcher for the Minneapolis team.

Charley Carr, manager of the Indianapolis team, entered into a deal.

"The price?" asked Carr.

"Enough uniforms to supply the Minneapolis club," was the response from Manager Cantillon.

Carr is in the sporting goods business. The uniforms were sent and Graham was signed.

* * *

Mike Kahoe, who is the Jim McGuire of the Washington team, says:

"I guess the Nationals hold all records for losing close games. The number of skirmishes we have lost wherein a timely hit would have won for us is simply amazing.

"If the luck should turn and we could gather in a few of the close ones, the Nationals wouldn't be down in the second division long."

* * *

John Ganzel's batting average is shrinking these days, and the long fellow will not have such an easy time in this league as he thought he would. He sure can field, though. He hits like a demon when there is no one on, and, in a pinch, blows up with a loud noise.

There is a goodly representation of college athletes on the two New York clubs. On the Giants' roster of college men are Mathewson, McCormick, Tenney, Murray, Marquard, Devlin and Shafer; on the Yankees are Chase, Cree, Demmitt, Vaughn and Paxitus.

* * *

While the Giants were in St. Louis Coach Arlie Latham polished up his old St. Louis championship medal and is wearing it as a watch fob charm. Many of the old time St. Louis fans called on Arlie.

* * *

Connie Mack seems to be able to dig up a classy backstop every time he has need of one. The latest Mack selection is a youngster named Martel, who worked for the Athletics for the first time on Tuesday. He made a fine showing, shutting off all the Giants who tried to steal.

* * *

The Giants seem to fall down just at the wrong time. When they have a chance to make a good gain on the Cubs something always happens to beat them back, but it's a good bet that they'll beat the Murphyite out at that.

* * *

Hyatt, the Pittsburg recruit from the Northwestern League, has been a conspicuous figure in the recent batting rallies of the Pirates. Manager Fred Clarke considers him one of the best natural hitters he ever saw. He is coming in handy at first base during the absence of Abstein.

* * *

"Rube" Ellis, the young Californian, who is making a big hit with the Cardinals, started in baseball as a member of the same amateur team in Riveria, Cal., with Walter Johnson, the famed twirler of the Washington club. Ellis is a left-hander and Johnson was the star twirler.

President Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox is trying to bolster up his batting athletes. He has just paid $3,000 for Arnold Gandil, first baseman of the Sacramento club, and also signed a Chicago semi-professional by the name of Stock. Gandil is the first baseman whom the Cincinnati club passed up last Fall when he was playing in the South under the name of Arnold.

RECORDS OF LEADING BATTERS OF BIG LEAGUES

Collins of the Athletics is the Star Stick Artist of American League.

Collins, the youngster who has been of such great help in putting the Athletics up in the race for the flag, is the bright and shining batting star of the American League. He is still hitting like a fiend, and has a lead of thirty points on his nearest rival, who is Heitmuller, also of the Athletics.

Lajoie is third on the list, four points behind the Philadelphia second best sticker. Lord and Carrigan are the only Red Sox regulars who are in the .300 list, although several others are close to it.

The Athletics are in the lead in team batting, three points ahead of Detroit, while the Red Sox are in third place, but one point below the Tigers.

In the list of best base runners, Ty Cobb has the lead with our own Harry Lord second.

Following are the records of regular players having an average of .300 or better:

STALLINGS AFTER "RUBE."

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—George Stallings has reopened the matter of trading the St. Louis Browns out of one of their pitchers, according to a story that comes direct from the Yankee's camp.

Several days ago Hedges, according to the story, offered Stallings any one of his pitchers for an outfielder, and when the Yankee manager replied, promptly choosing "Rube" Waddell, Colonel Robert Lee back pedalled.

Now Stallings offers Engle and a cash bonus, said to be $3,000, for the "Rube." It remains to be seen whether the trade will go through.

Wagner Takes a Tumble, But is Still at Head of the National List.

Wagner, the mighty Honus, still has a fat margin over the other heavy hitters of the National League, although his batting average took a tumble and is now below the .400 mark. Thirteen men are now hitting .300 or over, and a big bunch is chasing that enviable figure pretty close.

Roy Thomas is the only member of the Doves who is over the .300 mark, and he has been at bat but thirty-five times, so he does not yet count among the regulars.

Pittsburg has a long lead in team batting, while Boston is at the bottom of the list. This will help a whole lot in figuring why the Doves are still holding grimly to the cellar position.

Following are the records of regular players having an average of .250 or better:

FANCY PRICE FOR PROVIDENCE PLAYER

President Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox has just landed a crack shortstop in Blackburn of the Providence Eastern League team. At least Comiskey thinks so and so do other good judges of young players. Comiskey did not close the deal for Blackburn, however, until he received a telegraphic tip from Ban Johnson that the youngster was a coming star. So the White Sox owner dug up $6,000 in cash and also agreed to hand over two players.

The Pittsburg club and the New York Americans each offered $4,000 and two players for Blackburn, but Hugh Duffy, the Providence manager, held out until Comiskey's coin did the trick.

Blackburn, in Eastern League company, has show himself to be a great fielder, hitter and base runner. Off the field he wears eyeglasses.

MANY STARS BROUGHT OUT BY THE A. A.

If Pape, the young pitcher uncovered by the Red Sox, continues in the way he began, he will be one more shining proof of the fact that the American Association turns out some good ball players. In major league cities the baseball fans are prone to look on President Joe O'Brien's organization as but a shade removed from the bush leagues, whereas the fact of the matter is that the class of ball played there is but slightly inferior to that of the National and American Leagues.

It is safe to say that here have been more stars in the baseball world who got their start in the A. A. than in any other organization.

By saying that the ball players "get their start in the American Association," it is not meant that they played their first professional baseball in that organization, for many of them came from small bush leagues. However, the fact remains that they were developed in the A. A., and it is generally the development that counts.

To many of the fans who don't know where the fellows whom they root so hard for come from, we'll just enumerate a few who have come from President O'Brien's league.

Marquard From Hoosier State.

Rube Marquard of the New York Giants, who is known all over the country as the "$11,000 Beauty," was with the Indianapolis team of the A. A. all last season, and while he hasn't been a whirlwind so far in his major career, the managers all have a good word for the Rube.

Next in line comes Ownie Bush, the phenomenal short stop who took O'Leary's job with the Tigers right away from the little fellow. Ownie's price wasn't nearly so steep as that paid for the Rube, but that don't matter. He has made good with a vengeance. Bush was purchased from the Indianapolis club the same as Marquard.

Jiggs Donahue, the first sacker who was lately transferred from the Chicago White Sox to the Washington Senators, is one of the starriest stars that ever came from the American Association. Jiggs has been in the big league company for so long that the bugs of the present day forget that he had to learn the game, and did this learning with the Milwaukee club of the A. A.

And then right here in Boston we have a bunch of the ex-Association players. Bullet Jack Thoney is a product of the Western organization. Of course that doesn't get the A. A. much fame, for Bullet Jack has been only a fair sort of player in the American league, but when he is right, his throwing arm particularly, Jack can travel right along with the best of them.

Joe Wood from the A. A.

Joe Wood, the young speed merchant of the Red Sox sprung from the Association and also Charlie Chech, whose cross-fire was so puzzling at the start of the season. Then, as aforesaid, Larry Pape is with the Red Sox and he is another bright spot.

Paddy Livingstone, the Athletics' catcher, was brought out in the American Association and bids fair to be one of the best backstops in the business.

Joe Stanley, utility out fielder of the Cubs, played on A. A. clubs as did Miller Huggins, second baseman of the Cincinnati Reds; Ruddy Hulswitt, the Cardinals' short stop; Charlie Adams, the Pirate twirler; Indian Jack Meyers, one of the main stays of the Giants behind the bat; "Chic" Brandom, Pirate twirler; "Jap" Barbeau, third sacker for the Pittsburg team; Neal Ball, Lajoie's star infielder, and many others. It would take almost a book to tell of all the stars who have sprung from the A. A., but these are enough to show that there are some players in that western association.

DANZIG STILL STAR HITTER OF N. E. LEAGUE

Although he dropped 67 points in average the past week, Harold Danzig of the Lowell club continues to lead the New England League batsmen, having a fine mark of .407. He has played in only 15 games, however, so the real honors go to the veteran Billy Hamilton of Lynn, who is clouting the ball for .350 for a full season's work.

Hamilton is being closely pressed by Sim Murch of Brockton, whose work the past few weeks has startled the league. Murch is bating more than 100 points better than he did a year ago and is improving his average every week. Murch jumped from seventh place to third by swatting the ball hard during the week, gaining 16 points. Fluharty of Lowell, who was second to his teammate a week ago, has dropped to fifth place, being passed by Hamilton, Murch, and Bradley of Worcester.

There are sixteen men in the league with averages of .300 or better, a number that exceeds any the league ever had before at this time of the season. For the past three years there has been only four .300 hitters each year, at the close of the season, but this year it looks as if hte number would be more than doubled.

Courtney Best Run Getter.

Courtney of Haverhill continues to lead the league in run getting, with 59 in 64 games, an average of nearly one to a game. Henriksen of Brockton, although batting under the .200 mark, stands second in runs, with 51.

Murch of Brockton leads the league in hits, with a total of 82. He passed Courtney of Haverhill, who led a week ago. Courtney is now second, with 80, and has played in one more game than Murch. Bradley of Worcester, Barrows of New Bedford and Briggs of Haverhill are tied for third place, with 78 each.

Twenty-five Best Batters.

The averages of the first twenty-five batters are as follows:

Cooney of Haverhill continues to lead the pitchers of the league, with four victories in as many games played. Syfert of New Bedford has pitched only two games, both against Worcester, but he has won the two McMahon of Lynn, who was once with the Boston Americans, has lost only one of his five games and has a fine average of .800. Fullerton of Fall River, with 14 victories in 19 games, is the real leader, however, his percentage being .737. Wood of the same team stands next, with 11 games won and five lost. Abbott of Lynn, who is wanted by the Boston Nationals, has won 14 games and lost 7.

CUBS' STAR TWIRLER WILL JOIN TEAM

CHICAGO, July 12.—Mordecai Brown, the Cubs' star pitcher, will to-day join the team at Boston, if the physicians pronounce his wife out of danger. Ed Reulbach will not be able to be with the champions until the end of next week. Yesterday he took a short walk, but was so weak from the effects of his recent poisoning that he could not stand for any length of time, and asserted that he had lost twenty-five pounds during his illness.

JEFF AT LAST SAYS HE WILL NOT FIGHT JOHNSON

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

BAT NELSON AND WOLGAST READY FOR HARD FIGHT

KNEW HE WAS BLUFFING CRIES JOHNSON WHEN HE HEARS JEFF HAS QUIT

will not fight Jack Johnson, the colored champion.

The former champion's statement, given out in Montreal, is as follows:

"I won't fight Johnson, for I have decided to quit the fighting game. I can't get into my old class, and I don't want to fight beyond the color line anyway. I would like to see the championship go to a white man, but I can't go in to retrieve it myself.

"There are plenty of men who can trim this man Johnson, and I wouldn't wonder if it would be an unexpected Hoosier. But the fans might as well count me out."

Has Cleaned up $75,000.

"Jeff" is in Montreal, closing up his theatrical season which has netted him about $75,000. For the past three or four months he has been boomed along the vaudeville circuit as the man who was to fight Johnson as soon as he could get back into condition so that the championship should not stay with a black man.

Everywhere the public fell for this stuff. "Jeff" drew big houses. He made brief speeches, saying he would fight Johnson as soon as he got into shape. Publicity men and press agents kept "Jeff" in the limelight and some fight fans began to believe that "Jeff" really would get right after that Johnson person sometime and take the belt away from him.

Now that his season on the vaudeville circuit is closing and there is no advantage in the publicity game for the present, Jeff comes right out in Montreal with the announcement that he will not fight Johnson under any circumstances.

Wanted to Get at Him.

Jeffries' explanation about being unable to get into condition might go, but his added reason that he doesn't wish to fight a colored man, anyway, won't wash, in view of talk he has been making all along that he would fight if he could get into shape.

On April 19, at the American Theatre, in New York, Jeffries said to the house:

"I am satisfied, after seven weeks' training, that I am in just as good condition as I ever was, and I will fight Mr. Jack Johnson."

The house went properly wild at that. Hats were thrown up. The "Big fellow" was cheered as the good old game sport who was to rush in and grab away the belt from the colored Johnson person.

The very next day after he arrived in Boston, last March, "Jeff" said:

"I would like to shut up that Johnson's mouth. If I was only half right I would waste no time going after him for I am satisfied that even in that condition I could whip the life out of him."

JOHNSON SAFE NOW FOR A LONG WHILE, SAYS MIAH MURRAY

Miah Murray, one of the best known sporting men of Boston, said to-day that Jack Johnson would now hold the championship for a long time unless someone "jobs" him.

"Jeffries' announcement will be a disappointment to sports," said Murray, "as they had looked to him to wrest the championship from the colored fighter. I am not surprised, because I had heard that Jeff was not in condition. I don't think he was insincere when he talked of meeting Johnson. I think he gave himself a tryout and say that it was no use; that he couldn't get back into fighting shape. If he should enter the ring now I think Johnson would win. Had Jeff met Johnson at the time he fought Monroe he could have whipped the colored man.

"In my opinion, Johnson will hold the title for some time to come and the only defeat I can see is the possibility that someone may 'job' him."

GEORGE BROWN SAYS JEFFRIES IS WISE NOT TO ENTER RING

George V. Brown, manager of the amateur bouts at the B. A. A., had this to say in regard to Jeffries's statement:

"I am not surprised at Jeffries' announcement that he will not fight Johnson. I met and talked with Jeffries when he was in Boston, and I also watched his so-called training. He did not impress me as being in earnest in his training. One day he would go out on the road, then he would omit the training for a day or two.

"I saw Johnson in London, and I think he is clever. Nevertheless, I am of the opinion that Jeffries, in condition, would defeat him. The trouble probably is that Jeffries found that he could not get into condition.

"Perhaps he is wise, after all, not to fight Johnson. He can rest on his laurels as an undefeated champion. In a fight with Johnson he would have little to gain and everything to lose. Then again there are the sports to be considered. If he were to fight Johnson he would probably be the favorite. If he lost the sports would be badly stung."

NELSON AND WOLGAST MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

By H. M. WALKER.

LOS ANGELES, July 12.—With this city fairly swarming with strangers, many of the visitors being boxing enthusiasts of the "thirty-third degree" variety, and the Los Angeles followers of the glove game calling loudly for their favorite sport, the ring battles of the next two nights promise to be banner affairs from an attendance standpoint.

Tuesday night at Naud Junction Battling Nelson, the world's lightweight champion will meet Ad Wolgast of Milwaukee, in a scheduled ten-round bout and on the following night in the same ring Billy Papke and Big Jim Flynn will start out over the same route. All day Sunday a continuous line of ticket purchasers passed in front of the reserved seat box offices.

Battling Nelson has made a strong "call." Word was brought to the lightweight champion that both Promoter T. J. McCarey and Billy Papke had offered to bet 1 to 5 that Wolgast will win before the end of the tenth round. This news brought forth a vigorous answer from the Dane.

"So they think this youngster is hefty enough to stop me. Do they?" asked the battler. "Well, the lightweights have been trying to drop me for the count for several years, but up-to-date I have not taken the nap on the canvass. Why should they figure a 128-pound boy to lick me."

"Now here is where I make a noise like a bundle of greenbacks. I will call that 1 to 5 proposition. As a starter I will bet either McCarey or Papke $5,000 to $1,000 that Wolgast does not knock me out. Then just to show what I think of my own ability as a knocker out I will reverse the bet. In other words I will wager them $1,000 of my money against $5,000 of their coin that I will win by knocking out or stopping Wolgast before the final bell has sounded at the end of the tenth round. That's what little old Battling Nelson thinks of himself as a scrapper."

The betting on the fight is good at the odds of 10 to 6 with Nelson the favorite; Wolgast has a number of supporters who are wagering that he will take the Dane's measure.

Down at the Venice, the Milwaukee lad is in grand shape and will do only light work this morning, resting up in the afternoon. Nelson is practically at weight and after his strenuous work out at the South Side Club yesterday he will take it easy to-day and to-morrow.

BLACKBURN WILL NOT BOX IN RING AGAIN

When the lengthy Jack Blackburn of Indianapolis was given fifteen years in a Pennsylvania penitentiary the other day they stowed away the best welterweight boxer the world has ever seen. They had Jack dead to rights on the charge of manslaughter in a family quarrel and his sentence was the result.

Blackburn is a Kentucky negro and at the present time is only twenty-six years old. He was first discovered as a good boxer in Indianapolis, although the greater part of his fighting was done through the East, where he was a great favorite.

Think of this fellow, who could do 135 pounds with ease, having such names as Jim Barry, Jack O'Brien, Tony Caponi, George Gunther, Sam Langford, Jack Bonner and George Cole and a dozen other giants in his record! Think of this slender young slip of a fellow, a lightweight to all intents and purposes, but with the courage born of 200 pounds, going against the toughest of the whole universe and getting away with it!

When we read stories about how sharp match-making has favored certain fighters and how shrewdness has been a big factor in helping boxers get along swimmingly, we wonder what this Blackburn chap could have been thinking of when he made matches with heavyweights, and made them without as much as batting an eye.

He told me once that had he been a white man he would never have thought of such a thing, but because he was black and could "box quite a few," as he put it, the whites would have nothing to do with him, and he was forced to take on such matches as he could find. He couldn't starve, and that is what would have happened to him had he waited, he said, for the fair-skinned warriors of the ring to meet him.

Jack has only one defeat in his record, and that was a shade decision obtained over him by Joe Gans, a man of his own color, and in Gans's own town, back in March, 1904, in a fifteen-round battle that was a marvel of viciousness and hard-hitting skill.

Soon after that Jack cooked his own goose as far as the light and welter weights were concerned by cleanly besting Jimmy Gardner, the Lowell star, in a twelve-round battle in Boston, where Jimmy would have been favored had there been a chance. After that Jack fairly threw himself at all comers. He took them on as fast as they would stand up to him and never once did he meet a man that could trim him or even hold his own with him.

YANKEES MAY ROW IN CANADA

ST. CATHARINE'S, Ont., July 12.—Great preparations are being made here for the annual Canadian Henley regatta on July 30 and 31, in which crews from all parts of Canada and the United States will compete. The regatta marks the end of the rowing season in Canada, and the boat races are watched with as great interest by the Canucks as is shown by Englishmen in the English Henley and by Americans in the big intercollegiate rowing races on the Poughkeepsie course.

The pick of the oarsmen of American clubs will be in the Canadian Henley, so the contests are sure to be attractive. The date of the regatta makes it possible for oarsmen who compete in the United States national regatta at Detroit a week earlier to take in the Dominion races on their trip. Many entries already have been received from the clubs of Detroit, Duluth, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Baltimore, Buffalo and other large cities. The entries close on July 15, and there is every reason to believe an unusually large number of oarsmen will take part in this Henley.

All the best Canadian clubs, of course, will have large entries, especially in the four-oared and eight-oared events. The Argonauts, the Dons and the Torontos, all of Toronto, will have entries, as well as the Winnipegs and the Ottawa and Hamilton clubs.

All the races with the exception of the eights will again be rowed with a turn. This practice, which allows the persons on the grand stand to see the start as well as the finish of the races, proved such a success that there will never be any return to the old straightway racing, which prevailed at the Henley up to a year or two ago. For this reason, it is hardly likely that the grand stand will ever be moved from where it is now at Port Dalhousie.

DETROIT NAMES BOWLING DATES

DETROIT, July 12.—The officers of the American Bowling Congress have accepted the proposition of the Detroit committee for holding the 1910 tournament of the A. B. C. at the Wayne Hotel from February 26 to March 14 inclusive.

The tournament will bring close to 2,000 bowlers to Detroit, and will be one of the biggest conventions of any kind ever held here. It is expected that more than 125 five-men teams will be entered from this city alone. Fifty teams have been promised from Chicago, and the total number of five-men teams entered will undoubtedly be between 400 and 500.

The Detroit Bowling Tournament Company has been formed by the local bowlers to conduct the tournament, and already more than half of 1,000 membership shares, valued at $10 each, have been disposed of.

BOSTON'S SCOUT ON THE COAST

SACRAMENTO, July 12.—Back East, when he was catching for the Boston Red Sox, they called him "old Charlie Graham," but out here he's the youngest old fellow you ever saw, Mr. Fan. He is not only playing the game of his life, but he is also showing managerial abilities of no mean quality. When he took the local team out of the outlaw organization and jumped into the Coast League he made the move of his life. Sacramento simply went dippy and every man, woman and child in town became a thirty-third degree fan. But when the Senators, as Graham's players are called, got off with a rush and took the lead in the race, there was an awful jump in the straight jacket market. Then they began naming the kids after Graham and the mobs followed him wherever he went.

Graham has gathered a mighty classy bunch of players and even if he fails to capture the pennant, Sacramento will swear by him for next season.

NEW PLAYERS FOR THE WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Ill., July 12.—President Charles Comiskey, of the White Sox has announced that he has purchased two youngsters for his South Side team. One of them is a Chicago lad. He is Eddie Stack, the young pitcher who has made such a good showing with the Logan Squares. The other man is a first baseman by the name of Gandil, who was secured from the Sacramento (Cal). club of the Pacific Coast league.

TIGERS GET NEW PITCHER.

DETROIT, July 12.—Detroit will have a new pitcher in harness shortly. He is C. M. Tesreau, unknown to fame, picked up by Scout Jimmy Canavan in the vicinity of Hot Springs. Detroit's pitching staff is in such poor condition just now that President Navin wired the youngster to report at once.

Tesreau is a right-hander, six feet tall and possesses great speed. He has not had much experience in professional ball, but Canavan thinks so well of him that Navin hopes a little of Hughey Jennings's tuition will develop him into a real find.

HOLLAND TO MEET SIEGER.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Jim Holland, the English lightweight, has been engaged to meet Joe Sieger, of Denver, at the next entertainment of the Sharkey athletic Club on Wednesday. Holland is regarded as one of the best of the English fighters. He comes here with an enviable record. He has had many fights on the other side and claims he was never defeated.

In England, among other matches, he fought a draw with Young Josephs and beat "Cockney" Cohen in fifteen rounds. In Australia he knocked out Bob Turner, the recognized lightweight champion of that country, in one round. He has had a few fights in this country and has scored four knockouts.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

IT "HAS CAME" AT LAST. JEFFRIES announces that he will not fight Johnson. This ukase of the erstwhile pugilistic czar was handed out to the scribes at Montreal, where the former champion is showing this week, and the reasons given are that he cannot get into his old form and he doesn't like to fight a negro anyway.

Another reason which might be given with just as much truthfulness is that Jeff's theatrical season ends next Saturday and he and the astute Sam Berger do not see the need of any more advertising.

Jeff's statement coming at the time it does appears to make a certainty of the belief sport critics have held for months, that the big ex-boilermaker never intended to fight and was using the proposed bout with Johnson simply as an advertising medium.

Johnson is now the undisputed champion heavyweight and Jeff must be considered a down-and-outer for good. As the champion "staller" Jeff has earned a reputation, but slightly inferior to his reputation as a fighter in his palmiest days.

THE UNITED SHOE MACHINERY Company baseball team has a young pitcher who will bear watching. His name is Reid and in a game against the John C. Paige A. C., Saturday, he struck out nineteen men and allowed only five hits, three of them of a very scratchy order.

THE REVIVAL OF THE CYCLE RACING bids fair to bring that form of sport back into its former popular favor. Springfield, Mass., is building a new track in an exact circle, the grandstand of which will have a seating capacity of 15,000. Jack Prince, manager of the enterprise, is to-day sending out entry blanks for the initial meet on Saturday, July 24, when it is expected that all the crack amateur and professional cyclists of the East will take part in the opening program, which comprises four amateur and three professional races.

SAM HO HO LANGFORD, BOSTON'S tar baby and candidate for worlds' championship honors, will mix it up in Pittsburg to-morrow night with another "colored pusson," named John Hayes, who is known to more or less fame as "Klondyke." This is Sam's first appearance in the Smoke City and according to the press dispatches the Pennsylvania sports are anxious to see the man Johnson has been side-stepping for so long. The Pittsburg sports have recently had a chance to see Johnson in action and Jefferies in a farcical exhibition of boxing, and neither man made a hit. It remains to be seen whether or not they place the stamp of approval on Ho Ho Sam.

BATTLING NELSON, PUGILIST, AUTHOR and real estate magnate, will have an opportunity to-morrow night to show if he is the same old lightning fighter he was when he sent Young Corbett, Jimmy Britt, Joe Gans, et al., into seclusion. His opponent is Ad Wolgast, who is some scrapper himself, and may give the champion a very busy time getting the decision in the ten rounds the bout is to go. However, don't set in the family plate on Wolgast staying the full distance.

> Sport Editor, Boston American:
>
> I would like to ask you if a pitched ball hits a man who is at the bat and then hits the bat and strikes fair, what decision should the umpire give? RUEL T. YORK.

The umpire has no alternative but to give the batter his base for being hit by a pitched ball.

R. B. NORRIS—LOUIS DURHAM, who was purchased at the close of last season from Indianapolis by the Giants, holds the record for the number of double-headers pitched and won in a season. From the middle of the season of 1908 to its close he pitched double-headers on five separate days, winning them all. He was a large factor in Indianapolis winning the American Association pennant.

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
>
> Please settle a wager. Has Wagner of the Pittsburg club ever batted below .300 since he has been playing in the National League? How long has he been playing and is he going back? Please print his record. CHARLES MAZER.

Wagner is far from going back, and this year, which, he says, is his last in baseball, promises to be his best. He has never batted below .300 in the thirteen years he has been playing. He is now batting close to the .400 mark. His official record follows:

Year.	Games.	ab.	r.	bh.	sb.	P.C.
1897	61	241	38	83	22	.343

CONSTANT READER, PROVIDENCE—The post season series between the Chicago Americans and the Chicago Nationals was won by the Americans, the White Sox winning four games and the Cubs two. The umpires were Silk O'Laughlin and Jim Johnstone.

The records show that Jeff fought a twenty-round draw with Joe Choynski in November, 1897. He also failed to knock Jack Monroe out in a four-round exhibition in Butte, Montana, in December, 1903. He has won all other bouts.

This also goes for W. A. Lambert, No. 77 Cottage avenue, Winthrop.

> Will you kindly inform me who is the welterweight champion? A claims that Jimmy Gardner holds the title, and B says no fighter holds a clear right to the honor. GEORGE LEARY.

B is right, according to the consensus of opinion among fight critics. Gardner claims the title, and so does Mike Twin Sullivan, Harry Lewis and Tommy Quill. The later claims it by virtue of his showing against Jimmy Gardner last month at the Armory A. A., and appears to be the only one of the four who is anxious to go into the ring and settle the question. Mike Twin has wired Quill that he will take him on, but it is not believed that he can make the weight.

BASEBALL MEN SAY IT IS ABOUT time that ball players who speak of the magnates in disrespectful terms should be severely reprimanded. Recently Fred Clarke, the Pittsburg manager, was quoted as saying that the National League's directors were dishonest, but when called to account Clarke denied that he had used such an expression. Then came Chance, the Cubs' manager, with a volley of hot shot for the members of the National Commission which in the opinion of many merits prompt action. Chance was quoted as saying that the commissioners are "crooked" and that he would not apologize. When taken to task by Messrs. Herrmann, Johnson and Pulliam, however, he got busy and backed water so fast that he almost sprained his vocal chords.

THE FORD RACING CAR, WHICH won the Guggenheim cup and purse in the New York to Seattle race, has started back to New York via San Francisco and will try to establish a new record between San Francisco and New York. The route from San Francisco will be that of the Central and Union Pacific to Granger, thence through Wyoming, Kansas City, Chicago and Buffalo.

UNTIL LAST WEEK FORBES FIELD, Pittsburg's new ball park, was receiving credit for the largest paid attendance ever recorded in a major league city. While official figures have not been given out, it is believed there was a larger paid attendance at the first Giant-Pittsburg games in New York. It is heralded that when the big arena was opened in the Smoky City the Chicago club was paid for 30,388 admissions, while 4,708 persons passed through the complimentary turnstile. It is self-evident that baseball is a greater magnet now than ever before in the history of the game, which means that the magnates will not be compelled to stint themselves during the Winter months.

SPEED YACHTS IN RACE TO-DAY

BIRCH POINT, Me., July 12.—After a pleasant day's sailing in Casco Bay the Eastern Yacht Club fleet is tucked away in Winnegance Bay and to-day will hold another racing run to Pemaquid Point. The day was a restful one after the strenuous work in the record-breaking run from Marblehead to Portland.

The yachts passed a quiet night off Peak's Island and yesterday went off one by one on quiet runs along the islands. The weather continued fine and the New Meadows River was reached early in the afternoon. There a little bay was found far up the river, well sheltered, and there the fleet huddled together for the night.

ISSUES OPEN CHALLENGE.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The Ocean City Yacht Club announces that the Dixie II., the fastest motor boat in the country, will meet all comers in a one-mile dash in the tenth annual racing carnival of the organization, at Ocean City, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Parental Debt, One That Can NeverBe Paid

By DOROTHY DIX.

I HAVE been listening to a pathetic story about a woman who raised twelve children, all of whom, from a worldly point of view, turned out well. There were seven boys and five girls, and the boys are all successful business men and the girls prosperously married.

The mother is an old woman now and very poor, but none of her children is willing to help her or offer her a home.

She gave her strength for her children, but they are not willing to let her lean upon them now. She cared for their helpless infancy, but they refuse to care for her in her helpless age. She kept them warm against her breast; they deny her even a seat by their fireside.

One hopes for the honor of humanity that this is a very exceptional case, and that there are not many men and women in the world so conscienceless and so heartless as to repay a mother's devotion with the black ingratitude that these children show.

We Can Never Repay the Debt

No man and woman—no matter what love, what consideration, what tenderness, what money they lavish upon a good mother—can ever repay the debt they owe her, and this debt is trembled and quadrupled when the mother is a poor woman.

The poor mother lays down the foundations of her children's success in life with her own heart's blood. In order that her growing boys and girls may have the food they need she eats the scraps. In order that they may have the advantages of education she missed, she goes shabby and dowdy.

If they were sick it was Mother who watched beside their beds with tireless devotion. If they brought home a prize from school it was Mother who was proudest and rejoiced most over it. If, when they went out into the world, they failed, and came back bruised, and beaten, and sin-stained, it was mother who received back the prodigals with open arms, and asked only to bathe their wounds with her tears.

There is not a poor mother who does not deserve to have her children cover her work-knotted old hands with diamonds, and hang silks and velvets and laces on her poor stooped old shoulders, and if they cannot do this, the least they can do is to make her the honored guest in their homes and lavish upon her the affection and appreciation that is more precious, in a mother's eyes, than jewels and fine raiment.

A Day of Retribution Will Come

As for the ingrates who are ashamed of the mother that bore them, who have taken her labor and her sacrifices and are not willing to make any return, who have turned their mother out to shift for herself in her old age and feebleness, like an old workhorse that is turned out to die—the curse of God, who commanded us to honor our parents, is upon them.

There are few men and women mean enough to actually begrudge an old mother her support, but there are a great many men and women who think that they are repaying their debt to their mother when they provide for her physical needs. This is not enough.

She gave them more. She gave them love and tenderness and interest in their small affairs. She took the pains and trouble to make them happy, and no son and daughter are doing their duty toward their mother—paying back their debt—unless they are showing her the same attention that she showed them—paying her back in the same coin.

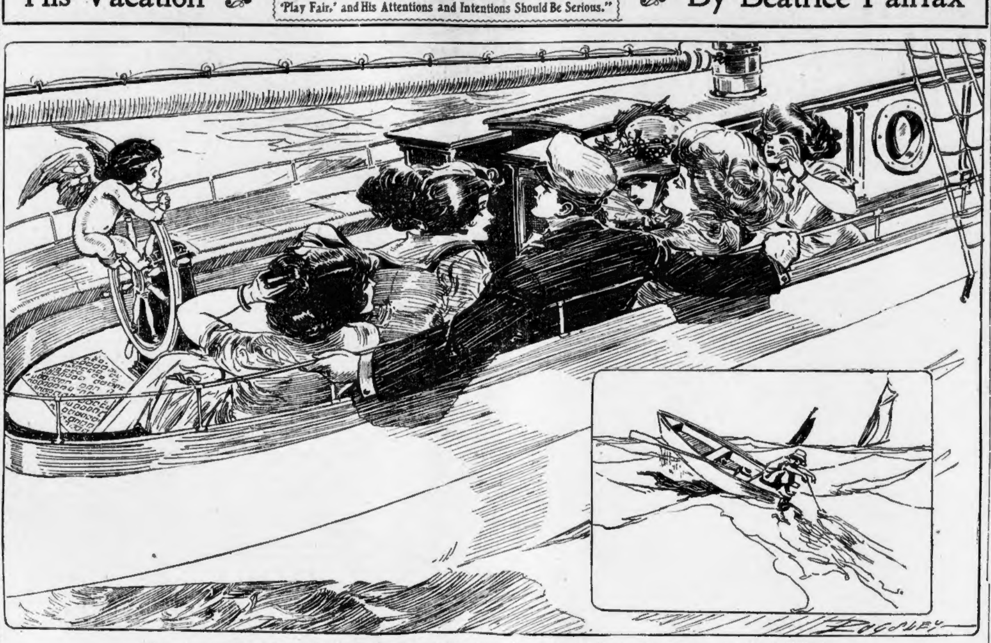
It's a Little That Makes Her Glad

It takes almost as little to make an old person happy as it does a child, and it is a bitter, burning shame to us all that we withhold that little. A few words of heartfelt love, a warm kiss, a little holding of the thin old hand that has toiled so long for us in ours, just the expression of our gratitude and of our honor and appreciation, will make the old face light up and the old heart sing for joy.

His Vacation

"And When a Young Man Meets the Summer Girl He Should 'Play Fair,' and His Attentions and Intentions Should Be Serious."

By Beatrice Fairfax



It's easy enough to plan a vacati on with not a girl on the horizon, but actually spending such a vacation is difficult.

IN anticipation he saw himself drifting along all by his lonesome. With the gray sea beneath him and the blue sky above—perhaps he would fish—perhaps he would just smoke and dream, with occasional dips into some beloved book. But there were no girls in the vision. This was to be his vacation, and it was going to be one of peace and rest.

"A fellow needs a rest on his holiday," he soliloquized, "and I'm going where there won't be the rustle of a skirt, nor the sound of a girl voice within miles."

That was his vision of what he was going to do, and this was what he did:

The gray sea tossed beneath him, and the blue sky spread its tent above him; but was he alone? Bless your heart, no? He was the centre of a group of laughing, chatting girls, and he liked it; yes, he did.

It is not good to be alone when the heart is young and buoyant. Youth loves youth, and that is the time to fall in love and be happy.

Perhaps he fell in love with half a dozen girls. What if he did? There is always the deepest corner of his heart left for the right girl.

This is Cupid's busy time of year, though he is always busy. But, with what the Summer girls and vacation time and the moonlight and the beaches and the shady walks and drives, it's a wonder the poor mite isn't worn to a frazzle.

Have as much fun as you like with boating and dancing and bathing, and all the Summer forms of amusement, but don't let your attentions be serious unless your intentions are also.

Don't win a girl's heart for a pastime, and just because you are on your vacation and out for a good time.

Every man knows perfectly well that he can enjoy a very pleasant friendship with a girl without misleading her and causing her to feel that there is more than friendship between them.

Most young people have several more or less sentimental friendships before they settle down to a real love affair, but there is no excuse for not "playing fair."

Remember that the Summer girl has a heart, and it is not a bauble for you to play with and cast aside.

The Voice of the Voiceless

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

(Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner.)

(Read at the International Anti-Vivisection Congress in London, England)

I am the voice of the voiceless;
Through me the dumb shall speak;
Till the deaf world's ear be made to hear
The cry of the wordless weak.
From street, from cage, and from kennel,
From jungle and stall, the wail
Of my tortured kin proclaims the sin
Of the mighty against the frail.

I am a ray from the Centre;
And I will feed God's spark,
Till a great light glows in the night and shows
The dark deeds done in the dark.
And full on the thoughtless sleeper
Shall flash its glaring flame,
Till he wakens to see what crimes may be
Cloaked under an honored name.

The same Force formed the sparrow
That fashioned man, the king;
The God of the Whole gave a spark of soul
To furred and to feathered thing.
And I am my brothers' keeper,
And I will fight his fight,
And speak the word for beast and bird,
Till the world shall set things right.

Let no voice cavil at Science—
The strong torch-bearer of God;
For brave are his deeds, though dying creeds
Must fall where his feet have trod;
But he who would trample kindness
And mercy into the dust—
He has missed the trail, and his quest will fail;
He is not the guide to trust.

For love is the true religion,
And love is the law sublime;
And all that is wrought where love is not
Will die at the touch of time.
And Science, the great Revealer,
Must flame his torch at the Source,
And keep it bright with that holy light
Or his feet shall fail on the course.

Oh, never a brute in the forest,
And never a snake in the fen,
Or ravening bird, starvation stirred,
Has hunted his prey like men.
For hunger, and fear, and passion
Alone drive beasts to slay,
But wonderful man, the crown of the Plan,
Tortures, and kills, FOR PLAY.

He goes, well fed, from his table;
He kisses his child and wife;
Then he haunts a wood, till he orphans a brood,
Or robs a deer of his life.
He aims at a speck in the azure—
Winged love that has flown at a call;
It reels down to die, and he lets it lie—
His pleasure was seeing it fall.

And one there was, weary of laurels,
Of burdens and troubles of state;
So the jungle he sought, with the beautiful thought
Of shooting a she lion's mate.
And one came down from the pulpit,
In the pride of a duty done,
And his cloth sufficed as his emblem of Christ,
While murder smoked out of his gun.

One strays from the haunts of fashion
With an indolent, unused brain;
But his sluggish heart feels a sudden start
In the purpose of giving pain.
And the fluttering flock of pigeons,
As they rise on eager wings
From prison to death, bring a catch in his breath—
Oh, the rapture of killing things!

Now, this is the race as we find it,
Where love, in the creed, spells hate,
And where bird and beast meet a foe in the priest
And in rulers of fashion and state.
But up to the Kingdom of Thinkers
Has risen the cry of our kin,
And the weapons of thought are burnished and brought
To clash with the bludgeons of sin.

For Christ, of a million churches,
Come near to the earth again;
Be more than a Name; be a living Flame;
"MAKE GOOD" IN THE HEARTS OF MEN.
Shine full on the path of Science
And show it the heights above,
Where vast truths lie for the searching eye
That shall follow the Torch of Love.

Happiness Is Not Bought by Great Wealth

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

A GREAT many poor working girls look in the mirror and see beauty, which they feel should be adorned, and made more beautiful. They long for fair raiment; for gowns and hats and jewels; and to shine before the world as raidantly as other women of whom they read, women less beautiful than they are.

Yet every such working girl who has her own self-respect and the ability to make an honest livelihood has reason to pity many a woman of fashion and wealth, of whom she reads in the society columns.

Not many years ago one of these beautiful women of the smart world came within close range of the writer of this article, under conditions where it was an easy matter to study her mind and character, and to obtain her point of view.

The woman had been given great physical beauty by birth. She had been given a fine mind, but her thoughts had graven her face with hard lines, and discontent and intolerance and selfishness were written all over her classic countenance.

Accustomed to large wealth from her infancy, yet she craved greater wealth.

Wifehood and motherhood and wealth had all failed to give her happiness, and the divorce court has twice dragged her name through its mire.

She believes she has been badly used by fate; that in some strange, cruel way she has been selected by destiny for sorrow.

Never Realized Duty

She has never known real responsibility; she has never awakened to the realization of her own duty to parents, to husbands, to children, to the world.

Wretched favorite of fortune, surely no working girl need envy her the beauty, the position, the money and the wardrobe she misused.

Recently there has been given the courts a wretched travesty on the life of a fashionable woman by the wife of a multi-millionaire who has sought a divorce.

Born in humble station, later married to a man of great wealth who had no ideals for himself or his wife, this woman has related to the court torturer, little by little, the foolish ideas, the wasteful habits and the ridiculous standards of the life of a woman of wealth—as she understands them.

Gowns Worn Once

She has explained how gowns costing many hundred dollars, with hats and shoes and gloves and wraps to match, could be worn only once if a woman was really "smart" and modish; how three or four gowns in a day were needed, each to be cast aside after that day; and with all this wealth and display, and with yachts and private cars and automobiles, and town and country house, and travel to every part of the world, where gayety was to be sought, this woman has grown coarse, her beauty has vanished through self-indulgence and lack of self-control, and to-day she is the living embodiment of unhappy middle age and discontent.

No hard-working mother of a large family who goes to her bed worn with fatigue at night but is more to be envied than this miserable wife of a multi-millionaire.

Had she married some honest youth in her early girlhood and lived a life of simple duties and clean pleasures she would have found happiness.

STRANGE MUSIC.

A parish beadle was lately much exercised at the appearance of a strange old gentleman, who, when the sermon was about to begin, took an ear trumpet, in two parts, out of his pocket and began screwing the sections together. The beadle anxiously watched him until the process was complete, and then going up, he whispered:

"Ye mauna play that here. If ye dae, I'll trun ye oot!"

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

PA & Ma had a fite last nite about munny. Ma won the fite.

The way the fite beegan, Pa gaiv Ma $25 & sed to her, now maik it go as far as you can. Ma sed to Pa, I will spend this munny the best that I can, & I will show you that I am a good manager.

So Ma went down town & wen she caim hoam she sed to Pa, well the munny is gone. That is funny, sed Pa, I thought that the munny wud last for at leest two (2) moar days. I thought you toald me that you was going to be a good manager, sed Pa.

Well, sed Ma, wasent I a good manager? Dident I spend this munny to the best advantage? Of course I did, sed Ma. I bought you a shirt, Ma sed, & a pair of stockings. That was a dollar all by itself, sed Ma. & on top of that I bought a shirt waist & a linen dress & a wash skirt & sum other little trinkets, & I took a taxicab hoam, wich was only $1.50, sed Ma.

Is that all it was, sed Pa, then yure transportashun costs moar than my shirts, Pa sed. Vary well, woman, sed Pa, go as far as you like. Then Pa went in the library & beegan to read a book wich is called The Baneful Influence of Wimmen Onver Grate Men.

You might as well cum out of the sulking, sed Ma, beekaus that wont git you anything. If you are such a tite wad, you shud nevver have married me, Ma sed. I dident think, Ma sed, that wen I was walking up the aisle in all my girlish buty I was walking to the altar to wed a cheap skate. What a New Englunder you are, to be sure, sed Ma. Why doant you loosen up & buy yurself a cracker & a bit of cheese, sed Ma.

Thare, thare, wife, sed Pa. Doant Thare Thare me, sed Ma. You have sen fit to questun the way I did my shopping, & that is the last time you can evver do it. You remember last week, sed Ma, wen you gaiv me the hundred dollars & I caim hoam with five. You called me down that nite, sed Ma, without any provocashun.

That nite, Ma sed, I caim hoam expecting you to say Deer wife, you are a economical littel lady. You dident say that, did you, sed Ma, or anything like it? No, sed Pa, I dident say that. To be perfeck-ly frank, sed Pa, I think that you spent the bank-roll that day like a drunken sailor. I think you broke through the bunch of lettuce like Bwano Tumbo leeping through a paper from hoam, sed Pa.

Thare you go agenn, sed Ma. It only goes to show how narrow men is. You know as well as I do that the only munny I spent out of that hunderd dollars was ninety-five (95) bucks, & yet thare you stand, telling me that I am a spendthrift. It was not so wen I was a gurl, sed Ma.

No, sed Pa, and it was not so wen I was a boy. Wen I was a boy, sed Pa, I always kept my munny. I used to earn one ($1) dollar a week driving fence posts into the ground, & anybody wich got a dollar out of me had to work as hard as a man pulling out one of them fence poles with his teeth.

Oh, vary well, sed Ma. I suppoas I might have known wen I got married that I was a victim, a future white slave. Do you reelize, sed Ma to Pa, that I am a white slave?

I reelize, sed Pa, that I am as white as you are.

Far-Fetched Fable

THERE were once Two Men talking, and said One to the Other: "Yes, I started in life without a dollar. To be exact, I had 75 cents and plenty of courage. But I was out to make money, and inside of a week I had turned my 75 cents into $10. I never looked back.

"At the end of the first year I had made $500, at the end of the second $2,500. At the end of ten years I had by my own efforts made a fortune of $1,000,000. This was in legitimate trade, without getting the better of any man in a bargain.

"I paid my employes handsomely. I neither smoke, drink, play cards, billiards, or go horse racing. I am always honest in business.

"What do you think of that, sir?"

The Other looked at him sadly a moment. "I think," he replied carefully, "you must be a lovely liar."

Which shows that not only is a prophet not without honor save in his own country, but that some people distrust a profit as well.

The Mystery of the Yellow Room

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

All Paris was startled by the mystery of "The Yellow Room," in which an attempt had been made to assassinate the beautiful Mlle. Stangerson.

"The Yellow Room" was bolted on the inside and there was no way in which the assassin could escape, yet when Mlle. Stangerson's father and Daddy Jacques, at work in the laboratory of the chateau, near Paris, rushed to the room attracted by two revolver shots, they find Mlle. Stangerson alone, senseless, with a wound in her temple. The window also was fastened on the inside. How did the assassin escape?

Joseph Rouletabille, a reporter for Epoque, a Paris newspaper, is aided in the search for the assailant by Lawyer Sinclair, a friend of Robert Darzac, fiance of Mlle. Stangerson. Their engagement, however, had been broken off two days before the assault.

Frederick Larsan, a noted Parisian detective, refuses to give his opinion in the case until all the witnesses have been examined. He declares that Monsieur Stangerson knows the murderer and allowed him to escape.

To explain strange incidents that happen at the chateau one night, during the investigation, the author quotes from Rouletabille's notebook. This relates that the reporter was aroused by a noise and found the corridor window open. He sees the muddy prints of a man's shoes on the corridor carpet leading to Mlle. Stangerson's room.

He enters the chateau and awakens Larsan and M. Stangerson, whom he places with Daddy Jacques in the corridor outside Mlle. Stangerson's room. He returns to the laddre at the window. He ascends it, but just as he is about to step into the room the ladder slips. The noise of the scraping against the wall startles the man in the room. He rushes through the door into the corridor, pursued by the reporter, who notices a letter the stranger has left on Mlle. Stangerson's desk.

The reporter shouts to the men whom he has stationed in the corridor. They respond to his cries and just as it seems the assassin will be captured he mysteriously disappears. They know of no door in the wall or in the floor that he could have escaped by.

CHAPTER XVIII.

"WE separated on the thresholds of our rooms, with a melancholy shake of the hands. I was glad to have aroused in him a suspicion of error. His was an original brain, very intelligent, but without method. I did not go to bed.

"I awaited the coming of daylight and then went down to the front of the chateau, and made a detour, examining every trace of footsteps coming toward it or going from it. These, however, were so mixed and confusing that I could make nothing of them. Here I may make a remark—I am not accustomed to attach an exaggerated importance to exterior signs left in the track of a crime.

"The method which traces the criminal by means of the tracks of his footsteps is altogether primitive. So many footprints are identical. However, in the disturbed state of my mind I did go into the deserted court and did look at all the footprints I could find there, seeking for some indication, as a basis for reasoning.

"If I could but find a right starting point! In despair I seated myself on a stone. For over an hour I busied myself with the common, ordinary work of a policeman. Like the least intelligent of detectives, I went on blindly over the traces of footprints which told me just no more than they could.

"I came to the conclusion that I was a fool, lower in the scale of intelligence than even the police of the modern romancer. Novelists build mountains of stupidity out of a footprint on the sand, or from an impression of a hand on the wall. That's the way innocent men are brought to prison. It might convince an examining magistrate or the head of a detective department, but it's not proof.

"Yes, I swear that I have never used the evidence of the senses but as servants to my reason. I have never permitted them to become my master. They have not made of me that monstrous thing—worse than a blind man—a man who sees falsely. And that is why I can triumph over your error and your merely animal intelligence, Frederic Larsan.

"Be of good courage, then friend Rouletabille; it is impossible that the incident of the inexplicable gallery should be outside the circle of your reason. You know that! Then have faith and take thought with yourself and forget not that you took hold of the right end when you drew that circle in your brain within which to unravel this mysterious play of circumstance.

"JOSEPH ROULETABILLE."

* * *

"I acted as I planned. With head on fire, I retraced my way to the gallery, and without having found anything more than I had seen on the previous night, the right hold I had taken of my reason drew me to something so important that I was obliged to cling to it to save myself from falling.

"Now for the strength and patience [illegible] find sensible traces to fit in with my thinking—and these must come within the circle I have drawn between the two bumps on my forehead!—30th of October, Midnight. "JOSEPH ROULETABILLE."

CHAPTER XIX.

Rouletabille Invites Me to Breakfast at the Donjon Inn.

IT was not until later that Rouletabille sent me the note-book in which he had written at length the story of the phenomenon of the inexplicable gallery.

The event of the inexplicable gallery had occured on the night between the 29th and 30th of October, that is to say three days before my return to the chateau.

It was on the 2d of November, then, that I went back to the Glandier, summoned there by my friend's telegram, and taking the revolvers with me.

I am now in Rouletabille's room and he has finished his recital.

While he had been telling me the story I noticed him continually rubbing the glass of the eyeglasses he had found on the side table. From the evident pleasure he was taking in handling them I felt they must be one of those sensible evidences destined to enter what he had called the circle of the right end of his reason.

That strange and unique way of his, to express himself in terms wonderfully adequate for his thought, no longer surprised me. It was often necessary to know his thought to understand the terms he used; and it was not easy to penetrate into Rouletabille's thinking.

When he had finished his recital he asked me what I thought of it. I replied that I was much puzzled by his question. Then he begged me to try, in my turn, to take my reason in hand "by the right end."

"Very well," I said. "It seems to me that the point of departure of my reason would be this—there can be no doubt that the murderer you pursued was in the gallery." I paused.

"After making so good a start, you ought not to stop so soon," he exclaimed. "Come, make another effort."

"I'll try. Since he disappeared from the gallery without passing through any door or window, he must have escaped by some other opening."

Rouletabille looked at me pityingly, smiled carelessly, and remarked that I was reasoning like a postman, or—like Frederic Larsan.

Rouletabille had alternate fits of admiration and disdain for the great Fred. It all depended as to whether Larsan's discoveries tallied with Rouletabille's reasoning or not.

When they did he would exclaim: "He is really great!" When they did not he would grunt and mutter, "What an ass!" It was a petty side of the noble character of this strange youth.

We had risen, and he led me into the park. When we reached the court and were making towards the gate the sound of blinds thrown back against the wall made us turn our heads, and we saw, at a window on the first floor of the chateau, the ruddy and clean shaven face of a person I did not recognize.

"Hallo!" muttered Rouletabille, "Arthur Rance!" He lowered his head, quickened his pace and I heard him ask himself between his teeth: "Was he in the chateau that night? What is he doing here?"

We had gone some distance from the chateau when I asked him who this Arthur Rance was, and how he had come to know him. He referred to his story of that morning and I remembered that Mr. Arthur W. Rance was the American from Philadelphia with whom he had had so many drinks at the Elysee reception.

"But was he not to have left France almost immediately?" I asked.

"No doubt; that's why I am surprised to find him here still, and not only in France, but above all, at the Glandier. He did not arrive this morning; and he did not get here last night. He must have got here before dinner, then. Why didn't the concierges tell me?"

I reminded my friend, apropos of the concierges, that he had not yet told me what had led him to get them set at liberty.

We were close to their lodge. Monsieur and Madame Bernier saw us coming. A frank smile lit up their happy faces. They seemed to harbor no ill-feeling because of their detention.

My young friend asked them at what hour Mr. Arthur Rance had arrived. They answered that they did not know he was at the chateau.

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BELONGS TO ANOTHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known a girl for about eight years, ever since we were children, and after not seeing her for about seven years met her about a year ago and find that I am deeply in love with her, although she does not know it. She is about eighteen or nineteen years old now, and has grown into a pretty girl. I have written to her three or four times, asking her for an interview, but I have received no response.

On meeting a gentleman friend of hers he told me that she is engaged to another young man. I have seen her several times, but she would only greet me and pass on hurriedly. I have tried to forget her and succeeded for a few months, but on seeing her one day my troubles are beginning anew. I would like your advice as to what I should do in the future.

S. F.

I AM afraid that there is nothing for you to do but put her entirely out of your mind. She is engaged to another man—and you have no right to interfere—the man to whom she is engaged would resent it very decidedly. If she cared to be on friendly terms she would have answered your letters. It would be wise to let the matter drop entirely.

SHOULD MAKE AN EXPLANATION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am deeply in love with a young man slightly older than myself. He told me that he loved me dearly and that he would be true to me as long as he lived. I saw him one evening last week and went out with him, and on my return home he said he would see me the following Sunday at a certain pleasure resort, mentioning the place, but no special time. I went there with my girl friend whom he told me to bring, but, as we did not care to go up to him when he was talking to some of his gentlemen friends, we stood off at a distance. The young man he was with turned and saw us, and as he did so they both walked behind us and neither looked nor spoke. I know that he was not hurt by my action. I think his friend is the cause of it. I have not seen him since, and would ask for your kind advice in this matter, over which I am broken-hearted.

ONE IN DESPAIR.

HE certainly should explain his conduct and unless he does you should have nothing more to do with him. It is possible that his friend keeps him away from you, but if he were loyal to you he would not allow any one to interfere with your friendship.

CINDERELLA AT WONDERLAND

To-night "Cinderella," with fifty pretty singers and dancers, is presented at Wonderland. The great ballroom scene opens in the central arena at 8:30 sharp, with special music by Teel's Band and wonderful lighting effects and costumes.

Many in the last few days have encountered little "Ikey" Callahan, four feet tall, with reddish whiskers and Prince Albert coat, escorting his girl about the streets and exhibiting "Cinderella" tickets. "Ikey" is back in Wonderland and head over heels in the "Cinderella's" game. He thinks he is going to lead the band through some of the opening numbers. Be there early to-night and see him thrown into the lagoon. His "best" girl is a stylish beauty and she is destined to take a prominent part in the "Cinderella" show. See her too.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN Outing Club, at Wonderland to-day and to-morrow with free tickets of park admission, is right in on the opening "Cinderella" shows. The free tickets are for park admission and vaudeville and the open air show. Then there are a dozen half-fare tickets, such as SUNDAY AMERICAN readers have been enjoying for over a month, making Monday and Tuesday of each week a sort of bargain day at Wonderland for readers of the SUNDAY AMERICAN. If you are not a regular reader get the habit and you will be surprised at what you have been missing.

"DEAD CLUB" HOLDS 50TH "HOPE TO DIE"

NEW YORK, July 12.—Three hundred members of the Dead Club, oddest of Seventh Ward organizations, came here from all over the world to attend the fiftieth "Hope to Die," as its anniversaries are called.

Invitations were in the shape of a coffin, the club motto is "Hope to Die," and it meets in an undertaker's shop. At its Sea Gate outing the menu included beer and ice cream, lobster and milk, and sauer kraut and watermelon.

7 CANOE UPSETS ON THE CHARLES

There were seven canoe tip-overs at Riverside, but in only one instance was the victim in danger of drowning. Off Norumbega, a young man started to change his seat, changed his mind, turned around and fell in. Officer Coombs got him in the nick of time.

The AMERICAN is the great Home paper.

CARUSO ANGRY, DISCOURAGED, TIRED OF LIFE

By VANCE THOMPSON.

PARIS, July 12.—Senor Enrico Caruso evidently felt like waiting till he arrived in Paris before unburdening his heart of its various troubles, or else he could hold in no longer, for to-day, while denying that anything was or had been the matter with his voice, which he declared was better than ever, he admitted to the American correspondent that he felt sad and had often so little enthusiasm to go on living that it was a toss-up whether to put on his opera costume or remain brooding in his hotel room.

"I'm tired of being a hotel lodger and having a home only a few months in the year," he declared. "Even my temporary home near Milan has been spoiled by lying Italian—yes, Italian—newspapermen, who spread abroad the reports that I had to undergo an operation on the larynx, giving all the details and hinting that I should never sing as well as I did years ago.

"Can't a poor tenor even do that without being hounded to death? But yet I confess I have my private sorrows. Of some I cannot speak; they are too intimate and such as private men have.

"Of others—well, anyone who thinks may divine them. It is true I now make about $300,000 a year, but this golden harvest I shall reap but five years more at the most, since I have determined to retire in full possession of my forces.

"If I retire with a clean million dollars that will be all, and I must live the rest of my life on that."

Then Caruso abruptly changed the conversation to another theme.

"Who is this young fellow calling himself Carasa?" he demanded. "I would like to meet him for about five minutes—alone, of course. He can't fool the American public nor even the European.

"On both sides of the Atlantic they know there is only one Caruso, but it's a piece of imposition, just the same. I'm told he can't sing at all, but his little game is easy to see."

A FEW PEOPLE DON'T USE AMERICAN WANT ADS

For the same reason that modern methods were once scoffed at by our forefathers, yet, in spite of prejudice, progress has its way. The successful majority employ the "WANT AD WAY" to secure tenants, or buyers, or help, or employment. They employ the AMERICAN, realizing that it is the only paper which will carry their message to nearly all of the people.

Mr. J. P. Morgan Danced the Polka

You Also Would Dance the Polka Enthusiastically IF—

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

A little news item tells us that Mr J. P. Morgan "at the children's party danced the polka with light-hearted agility." A pleasant, touching sight is brought to the mind's eye by this statement.

That polka was danced over in Europe, where Mr. Morgan is just now buying everything that is worth having, and a few other things.

Happy Mr. Morgan, to be able to dance the polka so gaily at the age of seventy or thereabouts.

You also, staying at home here in America, finding a little trouble, perhaps, in buying the things that are wanted on the breakfast table, would dance the polka gaily——

If you had some thousands of railroad men, and thousands of steelmakers, paying to you each day a part of the result of their labor;

If you could buy Mr. Carnegie's plant for three hundred millions of dollars, and sell it to the public as the Steel Trust FOR MORE THAN A THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS;

If you could be blessed as the savior of the country in a money panic—and get that blessing for putting out a certain amount of money absolutely without risk and with the greatest possible returns;

If you had as much influence with public men, put in office by public votes, as any million ordinary citizens—and that without even taking the trouble to vote;

If you understood modern industrial conditions so well that you could have a yacht as big as an ocean steamer to meet you on your return, a palace and a library covering an entire city block, and all the other "extras" that figure in the life of the baron of FEUDAL INDUSTRIALISM.

If you had the things that Mr. Morgan has, you would be dancing the polka a good part of the time. Probably you would dance even more gaily than Mr. Morgan, because it is likely A CLEAR LOOK INTO HIS MIND WOULD SHOW A GOOD DEAL OF BITTERNESS AND DISAPPOINTMENT HERE AND THERE.

Whatever you do, whenever you read about Morgan, and his polka, and his yacht, don't have bitter thoughts, AND DON'T BLAME MORGAN.

Remember that he and the other big men are simply taking what they can get, taking what their fighting ability brings to them in our kind of government, our kind of civilization, AND WITH OUR KIND OF UNTHINKING VOTERS.

Very likely, if you happened to be Mr. Morgan, and he happened to be you, you would be a good deal worse than Morgan, and he would find himself worse off than you are.

It isn't by envying others or feeling bitter toward the successful that any man will mend his condition. The little men must think intelligently, consistently, AND PERSISTENTLY, and work and vote together—as the big men do.

They must learn to control and own the national monopolies—which a few big men now own and control.

They must learn to use on a big scale the wealth of the country for charity, and no longer depend on the occasional crumbs that a Carnegie or a Rockefeller throws to the poor.

And until they have the intelligence to manage things for themselves, and vote together, and spend for the people the wealth of the country, let them be grateful that the big men give them back at least part of what they take.

Let them remember, for instance, that while Mr. Morgan is dancing the polka in Europe he is maintaining in New York City the only public hospital in that great city where a poor woman can go and have her baby decently born.

Every day there are coming into the world children whose lives are saved, whose mothers are made comfortable, thanks to Mr. Morgan's generosity.

That fact alone entitles him to dance the polka if he wants to.

The people haven't the brains or the energy to organize the great hospitals and universities and libraries for themselves. Let them not grudge in bitterness the good fortune of the abler and stronger.

The Dayton Journal Up in a Balloon

We Give Valuable Information Free to the New York Sun

The Dayton Journal, obeying man's strongest passion — that which leads to all improvement—and trying to do something new, printed some newspapers in a balloon.

After that, like Little Jack Horner after he pulled out the plum, the Dayton Journal sent around to the other newspapers, with proper pride, saying, "What a good boy am I!"

Our ancient friend, the New York Sun, shows some of the bitterness of age in its comment on the Dayton Journal's feat. We quote the Sun:

> We cheerfully assent to the suggestion of the Dayton Journal that The Sun assist its advertising campaign by mentioning the highly important and intensely interesting fact that a small printing outfit was loaded into the car of a balloon and that copy was written, set in type and several impressions taken therefrom while the balloon was in the air. We confess that we do not know what this signifies, or that it signifies anything whatever.

We gladly enlighten the old and dignified Sun. We regret that newspaper's confession that it doesn't know what the Dayton Journal's balloon newspaper signifies.

The Dayton Journal's balloon edition proves, to begin with, that there is somebody ALIVE in the Dayton Journal office. Somebody there is trying to do something, somebody has the vitality that lifts men out of a rut and makes them do something new, if only for the sake of the newness.

It is a good sign in any newspaper office when the men break away from the old roads and go into new ones.

It was a good sign in the Sun office years ago, when Amos Cummings arranged to have Captain Paul Boynton put an imitation torpedo under the bow of a British man-of-war, to have the newspapers write about it, and permit patriotic Irishmen to tug the Lion's tail.

It is a good idea when you see a healthy little boy turning somersaults, or hanging head down from a tree. That signifies that the boy is alive and growing. If you saw him lying flat on his back in the same attitude all the time, you would know there was something the matter with him.

And when you see a newspaper lying flat on its back in the same attitude all the time, you can be sure that there is something the matter with that newspaper.

Loving Truth for Its Own Sake

Written for the American

By DR. C. H. PARKHURST

FEW men are able to listen in thorough good nature to any opinions but their own. It is for that reason that they read books whose authors think as they do, subscribe to newspapers that are the echo of their own views, attend churches where are preached the doctrines that they themselves assent to, and in all ways seclude themselves from the general world of ideas by enclosing themselves in a cocoon woven out of the silken threads of their own finished convictions.

To love truth for its own sake is more than the ordinary person is equal to.

We feel about our opinions very much as we do about our house, or our books or furniture, which we like very much partly because they are comfortable and convenient and a good deal because they are our own.

The garden that is adjacent to ours may be as fine as ours and may be so situated as to be as distinctly in view from our window as our garden is, but we do not enjoy it nearly so much as we do our own because it belongs to somebody else.

In the same way the opinions we entertain count with us as part of our personal assets and are cherished by us for that reason, and we therefore put up a fence between what we think and what others think, and put a padlock on the gate, even assuming that we are generous enough to have a gate.

This is especially the case with people who for any reason have become especially wedded to their views.

Such ones usually have one or two doctrines in their theology, one or two tenets in their philosophy or in their economic system; and that one tenet or two, if there be so many as two, will probably have been the outcome of some peculiar experience that they have had, or the product of their own mind or temperament.

Erroneous Arguments Embitter Him Who Knows Facts

In some magazine or newspaper there appears an article tending to show that a considerable part of the poverty that exists in the world is due to shiftlessness or to failure to qualify oneself to do good work, or to lack of economy, or to extravagant habits.

Now those are facts, and men who have considerable knowledge of existing conditions know them to be facts, and no end of illustration can be adduced in justification of the assertion.

But all such array of illustration will mean nothing to a poor man whose poverty has been the necessary result of bad economic conditions.

And such illustrations will not only mean nothing to him, they will embitter him, and he will perhaps retaliate upon the author of the article by charging him with being in the pay of the trust, or with knowing nothing about the handicap that in these days is laid upon the shoulders of the wage-earner, or even with having no sympathy with the laboring classes.

Now we need not be either surprised or irritated by the resentment which the oppressed laborer evinces at being told that there are other causes of poverty besides trusts.

That may be the only cause that he himself knows anything about.

His poverty may not be attributable at all to himself, but only to unjust circumstances. So that existing economic injustice becomes the one article of his creed, the one window through which he is able to look in estimating either his own condition or the state of society.

Each Man's Beliefs Grow From His Experiences

And because that one article has been hammered out in the hot coals of his own personal experience, he is made deaf to any other voice and blind to every other vision.

That the wage-earner should be indifferent to all other considerations save that of the oppressive economic conditions of the times may be construed as proof of exceeding narrowness on his part, but it is narrowness of a kind that is not at all unlike that which, in one form or another, we are all of us displaying.

As already remarked, we most of us have only one or two articles in our creed; for while we assent in a formal way to a good many statements of truth, moral, political, economic and religious, there are usually only one or two principles that have so eaten their way into the tissue of our souls as really to admit of being called our own convictions; and it is because those convictions have been wrought out in the heat of our own personal experience that we become insensible to the truth of other people's convictions, and are rather irritated than nourished and stimulated when subjected to their presentation.

If a man's house is built with only one window, and that one window on the west side, he cannot see the sun rise. From which it follows that we ought to arrange to put in more windows.
